Reconstruction of center now planned for 1987

by Arlene Surprenant
Joseph F. Libuda, engineer with Storch Engineers of Boston, came before the Wilmington board of selectmen Tuesday night to present the final design stage of the Rt. 62 bridge plan.

The "long term project," according to Libuda, is essentially the same plan outlined in the Project Development Report of the late 1970s. Close to 20 plans were investigated before this "early start option" was finally adopted, he said.

Highlights of the plan include opening up two connectors off Main Street and widening Main Street to four lanes to handle traffic flow; depressing part of Rt. 129 and raising part of Rt. 62, Burlington Avenue and Church Street to provide minimum clearance over the railroad tracks; moving access roads to Diamond Crystal and Sweetheart Products Group further away from the bridge; and widening Middlesex Avenue by the connector roads.

Several businesses and residences in Wilmington Center would also be relocated with the help of the Right of Way Bureau, Libuda said.

Under the original plan, the Rt. 62 bridge would remain open to traffic while the new bridge is constructed. Under an alternative plan suggested by Libuda, a "one way by-pass system" would handle traffic on Rt. 62 during construction. This would entail closing the old bridge to traffic for that period of time.

Providing all goes well, construction is slated to begin in the spring of 1987, said Libuda, with a majority of work expected to be completed in one construction season. Also, he said, it is anticipated that a public hearing will be held before the end of the year, possibly in September. At this time, he hopes to present a plan that has "the concurrence of both state and federal agencies."

Selectman Rocco DePasquale asked that Libuda simultaneously address the issues of traffic and relocation of property, all the while being sensitive to the community's needs.

"We have not had a Center we could be proud of," he said. He asked that any changes not just be something to get "out-of-town"ers from here to there."

Mr. Muriello of the Diamond Crystal Salt Co. referred to the size and height of the proposed bridge as "really a monstrosity." He pointed out that widening the road by the bridge, then having it "narrow to nothing" will cause a bottleneck for residents. He asked Libuda to look out for the interests of town citizens before construction begins.

State Representative James Miceli was present to help field questions. He also expressed concern over a "long standing problem" on the bridge, namely, having heavy trucks use the bridge when it has only an eight ton limit. This problem, he told those present, needs to be addressed now, not "two years down the road."

With the project underway, Selectman Chairman Bob Doucette anticipated calls from the public on the necessary relocations. He suggested that, in order to be informed and able to answer questions, selectmen be furnished with a list of businesses to be relocated and a list showing where they will finally go.

Breaking away?

Officials lash out at Reading Light

Will Wilmington split from Reading Light? That possibility was mentioned publicly for the first time in a hearing in Reading last Wednesday night.

Wilmington officials opened up with both barrels at a hearing for rate changes held by the Reading Municipal Light Board. Town Counsel Alan Altman lead the charge with abrasive yet calculated tactics, and Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski read a statement highly critical of the RMLD.

Selectman Rocco DePasquale, while slightly more reserved in his demeanor, told the Reading officials that he felt a responsibility "to urge the selectmen to file legislation to remove ourselves from the Reading Municipal Light Dept. and look to alternative sources of power."

Attendance at the hearing was sparse. Most of the persons present had also been at a hearing the day before when the Mass. Dept. of Public Utilities (DPU) accepted jurisdiction of the case, based on petitions filed by the Town of Wilmington and the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

The Wednesday night hearing by the Reading Light Board was called to accept public input on new electric rates which took effect on June 1.

The hearing opened with RMLD General Manager Norbert Rhinerson reading a prepared statement, highly statistical in nature, in which he said the department had established a need for $2,632,214 in additional 1985 revenue, in order to meet expenses and still make the allowed eight percent profit.

Light Board Chairman John Crooker then recognized Richard LaCapra, a consultant hired by the board. Before LaCapra could begin, Alan Altman asked if he could comment prior to LaCapra. In a heated exchange with Crooker, Altman said he wanted to forewarn people about anything LaCapra might say, because of something said the day before. Crooker allowed Altman to proceed.

"Yesterday at the DPU, it was stated by Mr. Barna's associate (Nicholas Scobbo) that LaCapra had not seen any information as of yesterday," said Altman. "In the 24 hours since the DPU hearing, what information has he gleaned that makes him an expert?"

LaCapra said that he was there to supply an overview and to put together a continuum of rate designs.

Kenneth Barna, an attorney representing Reading Light, called the new rates a change in rate design and philosophy, reflecting a new industry trend of having classes of customers pay the costs of procuring the power they require.

"Classes that are causing the peak will be allocated the cost of that peak," Barna said.

Altman asked Crooker the department's goals and objectives in adopting a new rate schedule.

Crooker replied that it was to make an eight percent profit. Altman asked if there were any others.

Crooker objected to the tone of Altman's questions, saying, "I will not undergo any interrogation!" A brief but heated exchange followed.

Crooker then said that the department had three objectives — to reduce the peak demand, to provide additional funds for development, and to assure a rate of return.

"Are you using the rate increase for capital needs?" said Altman. There was further exchange of heated comments.

Attorney Barna objected to Altman's questioning, saying the hearing was for Altman to comment on the rates, not to cross-examine the chairman.

Altman said that to make comments in a vacuum with an absence of information was futile. Maybe Reading Light would be happy to provide some detailed information, such as profit and loss statements and balance sheets, so that a productive hearing may be held in the future.

"I ask you for those now," he said.

Crooker said that they would be provided, post haste.

Altman said that he had asked for information on May 20, 1985 and that it was June 12, 1985 and he still did not have it. Does this mean June 12, 1986?

Rocco DePasquale asked where the $2 million profit goes.

Rhinerson said that a portion of it goes to the town, and a portion goes to increase the plant.

Real home run

Tom Belanson slugged a homer to spark a seventh inning rally in Tuesday's game against the Farm Team Angels. A combination of errors allowed Tom to make the trip for the Expos. However, the bases were empty, the rally fell short and the Angels won by several runs. Celebrating are (left to right) Matt Lewis, Adam Holt, Tim O'Dea, Tom Belanson and Erik Neilson.

At a well attended, professionally run meeting last Thursday, the four finalists for the superintendent of schools post made one last bid to gain support for their candidacies.

The meeting was billed as a candidates' night and symposium to afford the public a chance to question candidates William Fay, Timothy Gormley, Robert Horan and Barbara Hunt.

Candidates were allowed three minutes to answer such questions as how they would handle the budget process, how they would improve morale and SAT scores, and how they would involve the community in school affairs, were they superintendent. One question touched on the certification issue, a subject of recent speculation.

While Horan and Hunt confirmed they have their Massachusetts certification and Gormley said he is eligible for state certification through a reciprocity arrangement, Fay reiterated that he has not yet received his certification.

Calling himself the "resident expert" on certification, he said his credentials were still under review by Boston College and the University of Massachusetts. Fay told an attentive audience that though he is lacking three courses to achieve certification status, he had hopes the two schools would accept his experience in lieu of the necessary course work, something they have been known to do.

Many members of the audience seemed impressed with the candidates' credentials and well-rounded answers and mingled freely with the four finalists over coffee after the formal question and answer period.

Chairman Tony Accardi was pleased to see the large turnout and felt it reflected well on the community. He was also pleased that the committee had come up with four "very good" candidates.

According to Accardi, the school board anticipates voting in a new superintendent to replace Dr. Carol Sager at its next meeting Wednesday, June 19.

100 years old

Charles "Fred" Burris, a former resident of Wilmington celebrates his 100th birthday last month at Meadowview Convalescent Home (formerly Green Grove) of North Reading. Mr. Burris received citations from President Reagan, Governor Dukakis, and the office of State Rep. Jim Miceli. Pictured above Al Malatesta, commander of Wilmington Chapter of the Veterans of World War I, Jean Foley, Meadowview assistant director of nurses, and Charles Burris.

Girl Scouts plan summer adventures

The Spar and Spindel Girl Scout Council has announced new opportunities for adventure this summer for girls who have completed grades six through 12. Four weekend trips and two day trips open to all girls, non-scouts too, are planned for July and August. The trips are designed for girls who have commitments during the week, but would like to do something special on the weekends or one day during the week. A nominal fee will cover all food and transportation costs.

The weekend trips will be a fun and relaxing time for both girls who attend and adult chaperones. Plenty of spaces remain for both. Weekend visits to Cape Cod are planned for both

July and August. In July, girls will have the opportunity to explore the scenic Berkshires in western Massachusetts; in August a weekend trip to the southern Maine coastal area will be offered.

Both day trips offered to girls this summer will take place in July. On July 16, girls will take to their bicycles to explore the Andover area. On July 9, foot power will be the mode of transportation as girls hike Mt. Monadnock in Jaffrey, N.H.

For more information on these summer adventures, both as girl participants or adult chaperones, call Lydia McAnerney at the Spar and Spindel Scout Council, 689-8015 or 745-1404.

Shawsheen PAC has successful year

The Shawsheen School PAC has closed out a "very successful and rewarding" year, according to President Joanne Neale.

The PAC realized a $9,000 profit this year from fund raising efforts. With the money, members not only brought in educational and cultural programs for the students' benefit, but they purchased several extras for the school as well. These included ceiling fans for all classrooms, games and sports equipment for recess, bookends for the school library, and a microwave oven for the teachers' lunchroom.

They also made donations to S.A.D.D. and the Museum Pass Fund and sponsored a sixth grade pizza hop and sixth grade field day for the month of June. Stepping in to new offices next year will be Joanne Neal, president; Barbara Walsh, vice-president; Mary Mahoney, secretary; Linda Whitebone, treasurer; Paula Samatis, publicity; and Jane Nitchie, sunshine hostess.

Two graduate from nursing school

Susan Dunbar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Daley of Strout Avenue, Wilmington and Nancy McMahon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMahon of Chestnut Street were among those honored recently by Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford School of Nursing.

Ceremonies held at the Little Theater at Medford High School, recognized students who have completed their studies at the hospital based school.

They are now eligible for the National Licensing Examination which qualifies them as Registered Nurses.

Eagle Scout

An Eagle Court of Honor is a family-oriented ceremony. William O'Donnell receives his Eagle Award from his mother, with his father looking on.

Boy Scouts advance to Eagle rank

Two Wilmington Boy Scouts and one from Tewksbury have advanced to Scouting's highest rank, that of Eagle Scout. Only two percent of all scouts attain the rank of Eagle.

William J. O'Donnell received his Eagle Award in a court of honor Monday night at the Wilmington Sons of Italy Hall. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Donnell of Aldrich Road, Wilmington.

Thomas J. Sweet has the distinction of reaching the level of Eagle Scout two years earlier than most boys. He received his Eagle Award in a court of honor on May 17 at St. Dorothy's Church. He is the son of Bob and Ginger Sweet.

O'Donnell and Sweet are both members of Troop 58 at St. Dorothy's Church.

John Austin of Tewksbury was presented with his Eagle Award on Saturday night at the First Baptist Church in North Tewksbury. He is a member of Troop 41.

The accompanying photographs were found and purchased at the Brattle Book Shop in Boston about 12 years ago. From papers and other photographs in the same drawer, and from a discussion with the clerk at the store, it is a reasonable guess that the photographs were from a collection owned by the late Bobby Barrows of Wilmington.

Bobby Barrows was the son of Herb Barrows, who owned a farm which is now the site of Avco. Bobby lived in a small house on Woburn Street on the north side of Lowell Street. It was torn down about six years ago.

He was adamantly opposed to his father selling the farm to Avco. Watching the Avco plant under construction, he said that it would some day make a fine town hall for Wilington.

Bobby loved railroads, and was known to take long train trips around the country. He also had a large collection of railroad photographs.

He died in 1963 in a woodcutting accident in his yard. Some time after his death, his widow sold the train photographs to the Brattle Book Shop.

Train run to mark railroad's 150th anniversary

A festive commemorative train run marking the 105 year anniversary of the Boston and Lowell Railroad, an early steam railroad in New England, will take place on Sunday, June 23, 1985. The B&L train will leave the Gallagher Transportation Terminal in Lowell at 1 p.m. and return from Boston at 2:40 p.m. The round trip ride is free and open to the public. Reservations are required and may be made by calling 459-1000.

This special event for the whole family will feature a Dixieland Band, living history presentations with characters "drawn back" from the original 1835 run for the occasion, and railroad enthusiast car hosts. The public is invited to wear Victorian clothing and take a picnic lunch which may be eaten on the train.

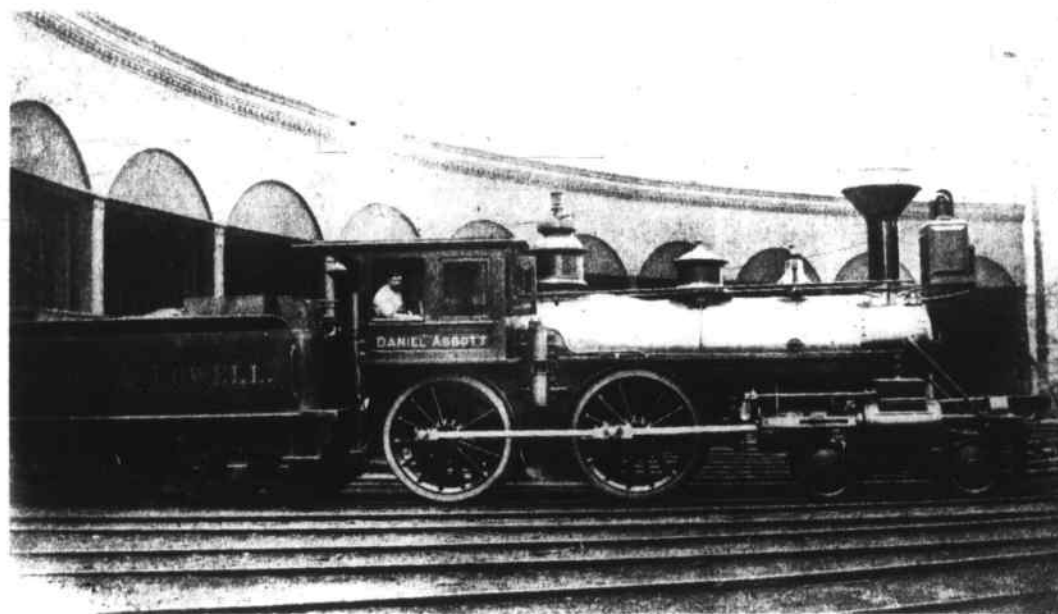

The Lowell Regional Transit Authority will operate a free shuttle service from the Market Mills Complex on Market Street to the Gallagher Terminal between 12 and 1 p.m., and at the conclusion of the trip will transport riders back to Market Mills.

The Commemorative Run is being held in conjunction with the Antique Wheels Festival which also takes place on Sunday, June 23, from noon until 5 p.m. in the Market Mills Courtyard and on Market Street in Lowell. The festival will feature antique cars, model railroads, antique bicycles, and motorcycles, and historic carriages. "A Brush With History Gallery," the Lowell Museum Bookstore, and the Gallagher Transportation Terminal will host exhibits on steam railroad, and the Boston and Lowell Railroad.

The Boston and Lowell Railroad opened for travel on June 24, 1835, with little fanfare. An eyewitness of the original trip recorded the dubious comments of would-be passengers: "The engine can never start all of them cars. She can't - I don't believe a word of it."

The Festival and Commemorative Run are sponsored by the City of Lowell, the Lowell Historic Preservation Commission, Lowell Heritage State Park, Lowell National Historical Park, the Boston and Maine Railroad, the Lowell Historical Society, the Lowell Regional Transit Authority and a variety of railroad societies. For more information contact the National & State Park Visitor Center, 169 Merrimack St., Lowell, 459-1000.

Early teachers at the Walker School

Copyright 1985
by Capt. Larz Neilson

The Walker School teachers in Wilmington, and the teachers in all the primary grades throughout Massachusetts were trained in the Massachusetts Normal Schools, back about 1900. The Lowell Normal School, now the University of Lowell, was such an institution. There were others, of course.

A course in a normal school was for three years, it is to be believed. No degrees were granted. The young ladies who were graduated were granted certificates. Almost without exception, they were very good grammar school teachers.

Gertrude Eames Allgrove of Woburn Street, Wilmington, who taught in the Walker School, was a graduate of the Hyannis Normal School. Gertrude stayed in the school right through the summers, so as to shorten her stay in school. The lady is not certain how long she was in the school, but she liked her studies, and she was granted a certificate.

Another early teacher, earlier maybe than Gertrude Eames, was Mary Carey. She happened to be in Wilmington the day after this paper published its story about the Walker School (June 12, 1985).

A Vermont native, she attended Lowell Normal School while her parents were living in Nashua, N.H. Her teaching career in the Walker school began in 1911. She taught grades three and four.

Nina Kincaid, who was in the first grade in 1896, was teaching the first and second grades. Upstairs Henrietta Swain taught grades five and six, and Blanche Alexander seven and eight. Mary Carey has a diary, typed, which tells in part her experiences in the Walker School. She can name many of the pupils she met at that time, in her three years of teaching.

Each classroom had six rows of desks, eight desks to a row, for the pupils. The total was 48 pupils.

During her first year in Wilmington the West School was closed and the pupils transferred to the Walker School. Her classroom was filled, and four additional students were placed at a table in the front of the room.

It was, she says, quite different from today's standards, where 30 pupils are considered to be an overload. She complained about having 52 pupils, but it did no good.

Mary Carey remembers many persons mentioned in the June 12 story, including Henry Porter. Henry's sister Anna stands out in her memory as being the only person in that brown-eyed family to have blue eyes.

She knew Mildred Buck, and her sisters Elsie and Heloise. Elsie was a classmate at Lowell Normal. Another Buck girl was Miriam, now Miriam Collucci. Daisy and Dolly Hunter were also standouts in her memory because their mother excelled in water color painting.

In her first class, in 1911 were: Vinal Lewis, Myrtle Baxter, Doris Frazee, Doris Fiske, Doris Hale, Manford Chamberlin, Talbot Livingston, Brownell Wilcox, Francis Twomey, Thelma Colgate, Reginald Wyman, Dana Keady, Reginald Frotton, Lillian Blaisdell and Sarah and Alice Bedell.

Also: Evelyn McGrane, Theresa Doucette, Theresa Babine, Edwin Butters, George Warner and George MAM Crockett, a young lady who was in later years a Wilmington High School teacher, and who became Mrs. Stanley Webber.

Mary Carey remembers clearly the courtship, by Herbert Barrows, of Nina Kincaid. Anyone who was in Wilmington in those days before World War I remembers something about that courtship.

Herbert Barrows, of course, is the person after whom the auditorium in Wilmington High School is named, a man who served his town in many capacities.

A farmer, and a widower, he owned all the property that is today the site of Avco, as well as the North Wilmington Nurseries. He always had the best horses, and the shiniest of buggies.

When Herb Barrows got into his buggy, and cracked the whip, while on his way up Mill Road to court Nina Kincaid, everyone within earshot had to stop and admire his handling of his horse.

Mary Carey remembers Herb Barrows driving to the Walker School, with horse and buggy to take Nina home in the afternoon. It happened often, and it was always quite an event.

Herb and Nina were married in Reading on July 10, 1912. That was the end of her career in the Walker School. In September there was a new teacher, Gertrude Eames.

Gertrude remembers Mary, clearly. A nice looking lady, she says, with dark hair.

Mary Carey, while teaching in Wilmington boarded with the Love family on Adams Street, today the Swenson residence. She became a communicant of St. Thomas Church, and it was there that she met the members of the McMahon family, with whom she became friendly.

On June 13, the day after the Walker School story was in the Town Crier, Mary was a visitor at the Tom McMahon Home on Chestnut Street. Mary McMahon called to the Town Crier to tell of the visit of Mary Carey, and of course such a visit was not overlooked.

Now retired, Mary Carey lives in a rest home in Lexington. Another tenant is the Rev. Mr. Coontz, now over 100 years old, and a former pastor of the Wilmington Methodist Church.

Eleanor (McMahon) Day and Mary Carey talk over the old days during a visit on June 12. Mary Carey once taught at the Walker School.

Memories

Three are older than Henry

Henry Porter had better take a back seat.

On June 12 the Town Crier guessed that he was possibly the oldest person in Wilmington to have attended the Walker school. Henry boasts of 85 summers.

Two persons who were listed in the Walker School story as being in the first grade in 1896 and still alive. It must have been the Wilmington water, as the late Dr. Daniel Buzzell used to say.

Merle Taylor, now Merle L. Mullarkey of 287 Middlesex Ave., was listed as being a member of that first class. She was 95 years old on March 24, and was a niece of Nina Kincaid, she who was also in that first class and who taught in the Walker School. Merle is at this time living in the Tewksbury

State Hospital.

Adeline Doucette was listed in that first class in the Walker School. The lady is today Mary E. Surrence of Muse Avenue. She will be 95 on September 13.

Edmund (Eddie) Sargent, too, is to be listed as older than Henry. He is a few months older. The Town Crier did not forget him, but, rather, because he lived in East Wilmington, had mentally assigned him to the East School where Henrietta Swain taught for many years.

Eddie did attend the East school, but in the fifth and sixth grade he was in the Walker School. The seventh grade was spent in what is now the Old Town Hall.

By that token Henry Porter is sitting in the fourth seat in any list of persons who attended the old Walker School.

Dear Larz:

Here is a question for you and your readers to ponder: What do the World Wrestling Federation and the Wilmington School Committee have in common?

These two organizations would on the surface be totally unrelated, but a close inspection finds they have much in common. They're both concerned with spectacle and entertainment. The Wilmington School Committee (WSC) and World Wrestling Federation (WWF) are engaged in hype and promotion. The WWF promotes the Hulk Hogans, the Iron Sheiks and the Sgt. Slaughter. The WSC promotes various and sundry candidates for school superintendent.

Everyone is aware that professional wrestling is primarily entertainment — it's not real. The participants are actors. The wrestlers perform within a scenario. It's all an illusion — a fraud — and it provides a lot of fun. No one would consider betting the monthly mortgage money on the outcome. Many of us have come to the conclusion that the Wilmington Committee deals in illusion, chicanery, and fraud.

Last year when the WSC announced a nationwide search for the superintendency, the members listed an impressive list of criterion for selection — certification being one of them. Many cynics laughed and predicted exactly what is happening now. No matter what, the WSC would go to great lengths to give the job to William Fay — regardless of his lack of qualifications.

The supporters of Mr. Fay like to downplay the value of certification and education. We've had outsiders before who were qualified and we didn't like them. It would appear Mr. Fay's principal qualification is his being an insider — a "townie."

When some seniors are trying to graduate next year and they're lacking certain course credits, they are sure to find a friend in the superintendent's office. Credit for some life experiences may be found. Perhaps a discussion of the ratio of punches thrown by Marvin Hagler to Thomas Hearns in the last title match would be appropriate.

Those who chose to be candidates were given the understanding that certification was a prerequisite for consideration. I assume Mr. Fay has known for some time he was lacking credits for certification. Why hasn't he more actively pursued meeting those requirements? Would his superintendency be characterized by acting under the gun and then hoping for the best? His statement on the meeting of the 13th seems to indicate this.

The World Wrestling Federation makes no pretense about being on the up and up. It makes no false claims. It is honest in this regard. I wish this could be said for the School Committee in its selection process.

The School Committee owes an apology to the town and to the candidates whose applications were considered under the guise of fair play.

While we may judge wrestling

a comedy, the performance of the Wilmington School Committee should be more accurately considered a tragedy. Name withheld by request

Dear Larz:

The Parents' Advisory Council of the Louise Davy Trahan School wishes to express dismay at Elaine DePasquale's front page headline "Test scores lowest at Trahan School," and subsequent article listing test scores. This was published in the June 6, 1985 Town Crier. We feel the headline showed poor journalistic discretion, and that other pertinent topics of the School Committee meeting would be of more public concern. The material may be factual, but need not be ostentatiously displayed.

The Trahan School Parents' Advisory Council feels particular disappointment that our school has been victimized to sell newspapers.

Editors note: The first step toward change is recognition that a problem exists. It is the role of the press to help provide that recognition to the general public. The Town Crier's intent was not to victimize the Trahan School, but to point out that a need exists there and should be addressed.

Dear Larz:

I would like to thank the school committee for offering the citizens the opportunity to meet with and hear from the final candidates for the school superintendent position.

I believe that all four of the candidates handled the questions very well and showed a level of caring and professionalism that is needed for that position.

Before a decision is reached however, I would hope that the issue of certification is settled so that all candidates can be evaluated on leadership and professional qualifications.

Wilmington needs a good superintendent to improve the quality of education throughout the entire school system, a person who can communicate with and reach out to the parents and residents within the town. I hope the school committee judges all candidates on their overall qualifications and chooses the person who appears to best be able to bring all factions together in a spirit of cooperation and a rededication to make the Wilmington school system one of the best school systems within the State of Massachusetts.

Sincerely,

David J. Fitzgerald

Dear Larz:

As I leave Wilmington Public Schools after 13 years of service as Director of Reading, Assistant Superintendent, and Superintendent of Schools to become Superintendent of Schools in Highwood - Highland Park School District in Illinois, I want to take this opportunity to say goodbye to the people of Wilmington, the many friends and colleagues with whom I've worked and from whom I have gained so much.

The numerous congratulatory cards, letters, and phone calls I've received over the past several weeks are most gratifying to me.

Certainly there's no way one can work for a town for 13 years without feeling a lasting attachment. I will not forget the people of Wilmington or what we've accomplished:

I will always remember how the entire community united behind the educational needs of youngsters and voted overwhelmingly to pass a $6.5 million bond issue for a high school renovation - addition project and to exempt this from the bonds of Proposition 2½.

I will always point with pride to the fact that:

— Wilmington students have distinguished themselves at State and National competitions in art, music, writing, occupational education, and athletics;

— A Wilmington Intermediate School was one of six chosen statewide to represent Massachusetts in a national competition for excellence in secondary education.

— A Wilmington principal was named the Massachusetts Principal of the Year.

— A Wilmington teacher was one of four finalists for the Massachusetts Teacher of the Year Award.

Most of all I will remember the children whose success symbolize what I have strived for over the years. This year's graduating class won over $285,000 worth of grants and scholarships. They were accepted to some of the finest colleges in the country. They landed some of the best jobs available to high school graduates. I am proud of their achievements, and proud that over the years as Director of Reading, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, and Superintendent of Schools, I have been able to play a part in developing the educational programs and opportunities that have helped these young people to compete so successfully with other students locally and nationally.

I feel a special affinity for this year's graduating class, many of whom started their school careers as kindergartners in 1972 which was the year I started in Wilmington as Director of Reading. Now 13 years later they are leaving the Wilmington Public Schools, moving on to new challenges and different pursuits - and so am I. In a very real way I share this commencement with the Class of 1985.

I leave Wilmington as I hope they do

— enriched by the many friends I've made in the past 13 years;

— proud of what I've accomplished;

— excited by the new challenges ahead;

— dedicated to service to others;

— committed always to the maintenance of high ethical standards and the pursuit of excellence in all endeavors.

I extend my warmest personal regards and best wishes for every possible future success.

Yours truly,

Carol Sager

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:
Had a dream tw'd like to share.
In hopes more of our townspeople would start to care.
To help save and preserve our heritage and the Walker School.
To demolish it surely would be breaking the rule.

Dreamt that Fred Cain Sr.'s plan for changes on Rt. 38 had finally come true.
More than 20 long years past since the fine plans that he drew.

Said good-by to all that bumper-to-bumper confusion.
Right down the main drag my jeff mobile went a cruisin.
My stereo a blatin, my hair
flying in the breeze,
No more traffic jams or getting by in a squeeze.

With my pedal to the metal
after I shifted into gear.
Flew past the police - too fast
for them to see or hear.

Turned off in the direction of the old Walker School on my way.
Imagined twas the new home of the Robert J. Cain
Insurance Agency.
His business had grown in leaps and bounds.

T'was a perfect place for his business he found.
Proudly he preserved the old Walker School and our heritage too
As his business expanded - it just grew and grew.

Dreamt there was a ribbon cutting ceremony
- the whole town came.
Cause he was a celebrity, his name would go down in fame.
Right beside his dad, the honorable Fred Cain.

Then I rolled over as another vision came in sight,
As I tossed and I turned,
thinking thru the night.

Imagined the Walker was now a Wilmington branch of the Andover Savings
Bank, cared for, preserved and restored
like the Brown Tavern in Tewksbury.
T'wd surely be a credit for a business to help preserve our history.

Showing compassion for both the past and the present too.
Pray my dream for restoration of the Walker School will come true.

Suddenly my dream channel changes as another vision came in sight.
As I continued to dream all thru the night

Envisioned the Walker School was now the home of a very fine restaurant and the aroma of fine cooking made me drool.

Imagined - "Rocco's Gourmet"
in the old Walker school.
The home of Wilmington's finest cuisine.

His parking lot filled was a sight to be seen.
Not a space to spare,
from the common to the

Just imagine - there are no limits to the possibilities for the Walker School.
Yes, to destroy our history
t'wd truly be breaking the rule.

North Reading's Town Hall
proudly made its home in Flint Memorial Hall
built in 1875.
Preserving their history, devoted townspeople diligently did strive.

Whoever is interested in saving the Walker School just make out grant application for funds.
The money will help as the project is begun

Then the Walker School will be recorded in the National Register of Historical Landmarks to,
Pray someone will come forth
for the demolition date is due.

No, let's all pray for all of our leaders that they'll make a decision that is right
With divine guidance from above, pray they'll all see the guiding light.

Resident wants information about air pollution incident

by Arlene Surprenant
Concern over a recent air pollution incident in the Wilmington Industrial Park area and the lack of any further information released about the incident brought resident David Fitzgerald before selectmen Tuesday night to seek some answers.

"To set the fears of people at rest," he noted, a statement should be issued stressing that officials are working on a solution.

Fitzgerald had previously written letters to Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski and two local newspapers in order to get some sort of "public acknowledgement" which he hoped would lead to some action taken by local boards. He also pointed out that the deadline for the Air Pollution Task Force's report on "protocol" dealing with the proper handling of such problems was past due.

The incident, an odor problem resulting in several reports of sickness, occurred in May.
According to press reports, an investigation was made, but officials couldn't pinpoint where the odor was coming from.

While Stapczynski agreed to a possible need for better communication with the public, he pointed out that both the Board of Health and the Air Pollution Task Force had taken the problem under advisement.

He said he had received conflicting reports on the seriousness of the incident from the industries which may be involved and the Regional Health Center, where many of those stricken were taken. While the press made it seem like a
"life or death situation," he said, there was really another side to the story.

An investigation had been made, Stapczynski explained, but he couldn't discuss the results in an open session. Right now there are just a number of allegations, he added.

"This is certainly not a recent problem," said Selectman Dan Ballou. He stressed that it has been occurring for a long time and suggested that, though they shouldn't "alarm" the public, officials should act quickly on future incidents, possibly even asking for federal assistance.

Board of Health Chairman Domenic Tutela pointed out that his board met with the Air Pollution Task Force Monday night over this very issue. He also announced the task force would become the Air Quality Committee, a permanent arm of the Board of Health.

Wilmington board adopts revised school calendar

by Arlene Surprenant

As one of her last official acts as Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Carol Sager recommended that the Wilmington School Committee adopt a traditional calendar for the 1985-86 school year, something the board agreed to do in a four to one vote, but only with revisions. Sager told members at their meeting last Wednesday that she had looked at other alternatives, but felt this solution was best.

The school board had been asked by the Permanent Building Committee to vacate the high school between June 6 and mid-September to allow for intensive construction, primarily on the Adams Street wing. However, by law, students would still have to fulfill the 180 day requirement. This posed a dilemma for the board.

Bob Peterson moved to accept Sager's recommendation, but only with the changes discussed with representatives of the Wilmington Teachers' Association on June 7. These changes included a suggestion that high school pupils follow their normal exam schedule after June 6 in one of the junior high buildings and students make-up any snow days on several Saturdays in April and May.

Some discussion centered around school on Saturdays, as it was felt there might be some interference with sports programs scheduled for the weekend.

To cut back on the number of Saturdays, which could involve up to five days, depending on the number of snow days used, both Tony Accardi and Bridget Zukas favored an amendment. They suggested pupils attend school on December 23 and the Tuesday after Labor Day, both of which are part of the normal vacation schedule.

The motion passed with the changes and the amendment

Buell appointed to three special commissions

Senator Robert C. Buell (R-Boxford), as a recently appointed member of three special commissions established by acts of the Legislature, will be studying over the next few months some wide-ranging areas of public concern: health insurance, divorce laws and the soft-shell clam industry.

The first commission, to investigate the operations of Blue Cross and Blue Shield in Massachusetts, was established by a 1984 statute that reaffirmed the medical service corporation's policy of prohibiting physicians from "balance billing" their subscribers. Senator Buell, in describing the scope of the group's responsibilities, said, "We will examine the tax, reimbursement and regulatory status of Blue Cross and Blue Shield and look into their standing relative to other insurers, with special emphasis on pricing and contracting policies."

The second special commission will study the existing state laws and practices on divorce and their impact on parents and children. Buell noted, "Our commission has been charged with proposing modifications in the current process that has impacted so many families."

The adequacy of the rules and regulations under which clambers operate will be reviewed by the special commission on the soft-shell clam industry. The Senator mentioned that several issues will be addressed by the group. "The timeliness of the opening and closing of clam beds, the operations of our depuration plant and state laboratories, and the overlapping and sometimes conflicting jurisdictions of the state agencies that regulate the clamming industry are just a few of the matters we will be looking at," said Buell.

The Senator noted that he was pleased to have been appointed to the study commission and that the members would welcome the input of interested organizations and citizens.

Wilmington schools offer summer program

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington summer school program, under coordinator Matthew Joyce, moves into its second year on July 1 and will run for six weeks until August 9. Two sessions will be offered — one from 7:45 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. and the other from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

Registration will take place June 24-28 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the high school guidance office or by mail.

According to Joyce, the program originated 10 or 12 years ago, but was dropped because of budget constraints when the Shawsheen Tech began offering a summer program for neighboring students.

A year ago, said Joyce, committeeman Phil Fenton suggested Wilmington service the needs of its own students, including both the junior high and high school levels, and the program was reborn.

Joyce pointed out the program augments the enrichment program of the Community Schools and primarily provides an opportunity for pupils failing one or more classes to make up the course and advance with their classes the following year.

In order to take advantage of the summer offerings, students need the permission of their building principal and must pay $75 for each course plus a $10 registration fee. Since attendance is a high priority, they also must not miss more than four classes during the entire session or academic credit will be withheld.

The "self-sustaining" program was started with $5,000 "seed money." This year, said Joyce, they will utilize $1,000 leftover from last year's funds plus an anticipated $3,000 from the school budget.

Courses offered include English, math, science, social studies, and possibly physical education. All classes will run, subject to enrollment.

Joyce hopes to expand the offerings in the future to include enrichment courses such as an SAT review and computer camps.

Other schools offering summer classes are Shawsheen Tech (high school level), the Stoneham schools (junior high level), and the Woburn schools.

25 years ago

The June 23, 1965 issue of the Town Crier noted:

Harold Shea was named superintendent of schools to replace John Collins who was leaving to take a position in Goshen, N.Y.

A radio controlled model airplane was found in the woods off Jaquith Road, Sgt. Imbimbo and Officer Ritchie were pictured examining it.

Joseph Landry of Taft Road was awarded his second scholarship to the School of Fine Arts, Boston.

The old Hiller estate plus one half acre fronting on Church Street, was sold by Stop and Shop Markets to Middlesex County National Bank. The deed was filed showing the sale price for both parcels at $50,000.

Joe Filipowicz of Oakridge Circle was said to have a good chance to win the mythical golden pea spoon awarded each year by the Town Crier to the resident picking the earliest peas.

VFW Post 2458 had launched a flag campaign of the new 50 star flag so anyone who wished could display it on July 4.

Elia's was advertising tickets to the North Shore Summer Theatre as a service to friends and customers of the store so they wouldn't have to make a trip to Beverly for them.

The Rev. Richard Harding, pastor of Wilmington's United Methodist Church was reappointed by Bishop John Wesley for his eighth year as pastor.

Cliff Braman of Fairmeadow Road had Louie Theriault put a door on his garage with a deer carved on it.

Gene Duggan was offering to deliver loam at $3 per yard and Patsy's farm advertised oranges at three dozen for $1.00.

Joseph Tennihan of Sheridan Road was named president of Wilmington Little League.

Peter Neilson and Judith Cutter were chosen to attend Boys and Girls State by American Legion Post 136. Peter would attend UMass while Judith would go to Bridgewater.

Carol Randell of West Street, WHS senior was named outstanding athlete of 1960.

Reading Light

Peter Gorshel spoke at length, calling the hearing a "dumb show and a fraud." He recited a history of poor relations between his town and the RMLD. Referring to the payments made in lieu of taxes, he charged that Reading Light had signed a contract in 1972, and had disengaged from it in 1984, when RMLD stopped such payments. "I find it almost humorous that you call a hearing and provide us with no information," Gorshel said.

He then came forth with a series of rapid-fire questions, leading with, "How are you preparing for a disaster called Seabrook?"

After asking for detailed financial information and a transcript of the hearing, Gorshel concluded his remarks by referring to a headline which he said ran in the Lynn newspaper last January, which read, "Would you believe — Lynnfield Light Co.?"

Rocco DePasquale then said he would urge the selectmen to file legislation removing Wilmington from Reading Light.

Gorshel said that if Wilmington takes that step,

Lynnfield would be very much interested in cooperating with them.

Joan O'Rourke, executive director of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, read a letter, calling the rate changes discriminatory and unjustified.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski read a statement, saying that the Reading commissioners had refused to meet with the Wilmington selectmen on several occasions.

Wilmington, he noted, accounts for approximately 65 to 75 percent of the gross revenues of Reading Light. "What kind of operation are you going to run with only 25 or 35 percent of your current revenue?" he said.

Altman then went to the table where the commissioners were seated, and took a piece of paper from in front of Allen Ames, displaying Ames' doodles to the meeting. He suggested that a Freudian interpretation of the doodling would be very interesting. He alleged that Ames had a lack of interest in the comments made in the hearing.

Crooker replied to some of Stapczynski's remarks, saying that he had some discussion with Crooker that he failed to mention. He said that the payments in lieu of taxes had been suspended for reassessment in 1984, after Reading Light had found that they were excessive, but that they had been resumed.

TOWN OF WILMINGTON

INVITATION TO BID

The Town of Wilmington will receive sealed bids to prepare and paint the Harnden Tavern, 430 Salem Street and remove paint and apply stain to the Roman House (School Administration Building) 159 Church Street at the office of the Town Manager, Town Hall, 121 Glen Road, Wilmington, MA 01887 until 11:00 A.M. Thursday, June 27, 1985.

JDC hearing postponed

Because of a flaw in the way the hearing was advertised, JDC Properties, developers of the Apple Hill Technology Park in North Tewksbury, asked that a June 10 scheduled public hearing on their plans to subdivide some 45 acres of land off North Street into ten lots be postponed. The Planning Board agreed with the request and rescheduled the hearing for Monday, July 8.

But, the board did hold an informal discussion with the developers in which several area residents questioned JDC's plans to develop more research and development buildings on land running off North Street along with the border with Interstate Route 495.

JDC seeks to subdivide a large parcel of land they own or have options to buy. The subdivision plan will create a total of ten lots, but only five building lots. Two of the lots created under the subdivision plan are in a residential and farming district which can not be developed for industrial or commercial use.

Those two parcels of residential land, totaling 9.14 acres, were the subject of a recent rezoning request that was shot down at town meeting. JDC had supported having the land rezoned for industrial use and had planned to use a historic home currently on one of the lots and owned by former Selectman Tom Budrewicz as the site of their private offices. The firm's offices are currently located in Reading.

But residents in the area were successful in their bid to prevent the rezoning.

The subdivision plan does not show plans for the actual buildings JDC hopes to construct in the area. Those building plans will be presented to the planners at separate site plan review public hearings. JDC plans to phase the development of the land and will present building plans as the firm prepares to build each building.

Residents of the area questioned why JDC was planning to subdivide residential land as part of their commercial plans. Engineers for the firm explained that parts of the two residential lots they have an option to buy are in the industrial zone. Those parts would have to be subdivided off and placed as separate lots within the industrial zone. The remaining parts of those lots also have to be shown and JDC officials said there are no plans to build on them.

Residents, however, feared that allowing the subdivision of residential land would make it easier for JDC to have the residential parcels rezoned in the future.

"By no means does what they're doing make it easier to change the zoning at a later date," said Planner Robert Fowler.

JDC representative Charles Gorman, in response to a question from an area resident, said his firm would not commit itself to never seeking a rezoning on the unused part of the residential land.

JDC does have plans to develop their second building on the site. The second building will be built on 6.37 acres of land that comprises three of the ten lots in the subdivision. The building will yield about 104,000 square feet of space and have some 450 parking spaces.

The second building plans before the planning board fall under the town's site plan review bylaw and will be presented at a public hearing Monday, June 24.

Area resident Pat Plunket, an attorney, questioned JDC's intentions in the area. He said he didn't believe that Budrewicz's land had as much heavy industry zone as the firm claimed. Plunket also said that he feared if the residential land had been rezoned, the firm would have placed more industrial buildings there rather than leaving it as a natural buffer zone between the industrial and residential districts.

Planning Board Chairman Robert Sullivan, however, gaveled Plunket down several times, warning him not to impart conjecture at the meeting. Plunket, however, would continue questioning the firm.

In addressing the second building plans, Plunket asked planners to set the proposed building further back from the street than the proposed 60 feet in order to "retain the residential area." He said North Street is basically a residential street and that placing the building further back from the street would leave a green area visible from the street that would mesh in with the rest of the neighborhood.

JDC has met the zoning requirements for placing an industrial building at least 40 feet from the street. The firm left an additional 20 feet from the street so that the building would still meet requirements if the town decided to use that 20 foot strip to widen North Street at a later date.

Plunket, who said he was speaking on behalf of himself and the Barrett family who abut the Apple Hill development, said he was opposed to the subdivision plans.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Joseph Payne

Jane Conlin is bride

Jane Ellen Conlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Conlin of Lloyd Road, Wilmington became the bride of Daniel Joseph Payne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Payne of Concord on May 11.

The Rev. William Smith performed the nuptial mass before the altar of St. Dorothy's Church.

Gail Judd of Wilmington served as matron of honor while the bride's attendants were Christine Vallieke, sister of the bride, of Wilmington and Cynthia and Christine Brown, nieces of the bride of Lilburn, Georgia.

Brenda Clark engaged

Jack and Lorraine Clark of Sheldon Avenue, Wilmington have announced the engagement of their daughter Brenda Jean Clark to Christopher Nolan, son of Francis and Norma Nolan of Hathaway Road.

Brenda is a 1981 graduate of Wilmington High school and recently received a BS in business administration from Salem State College in May. She is employed at Urban Data Processing, Inc., in Burlington. Christopher is a 1980 graduate of Wilmington High School and is employed by the Carpetners Union, Local 281, in Medford. An October wedding is planned.

Nick DiFranco of Newton acted as best man while ushering duties were in charge of Jack Conlin, brother of the bride, of Medford and William and Jack Payne, brothers of the groom of Concord.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at Sons of Italy Hall, Wilmington where Patricia Brown, sister of the bride circulated the guest book.

Following a honeymoon in Cancun, Mexico, the couple is now living in Hudson, N.H.

The new Mrs. Payne is a 1976 graduate of Wilmington High School and is now employed with Wang Consolidation Center, Tewksbury.

Her husband, a four-year Navy veteran, graduated from Concord - Carlisle High School. He is currently employed with Millstone Radar Site, Westford.

No magic

The trick was on the magician at the Lions Club last week. Father Joseph Blaney, O.M.I. came prepared to entertain with a magic show. Instead, he was entertained, as the subject of an old-fashioned roast.

Lions roast Father Blaney

Father Joseph Blaney, O.M.I., of St. William's Church in Tewksbury has a new definition of the word "magician," one that would include "roast" in it.

Well known for his abilities for pulling rabbits from a hat, Father Joe, as he is called by his fellow Tewksbury Lions Club members, was prepared to present a new magic program to his fellow Lions on June 12. Dick Morris, former selectman, was to introduce Father Joe, who will be leaving his post at St. William's for a new assignment, before the program began.

But, there were a few problems.

The first was that Father Joe's new magic program had not arrived at St. William's Rectory on June 10, the day it was to be delivered.

It did arrive June 11, but Father Joe had only 24 hours to practice his new magic. Practice is a very important part of any magician's repertoire.

The second problem was that Dick Morris, who was to be the Lions spokesman, was in the hospital with an injured knee.

But, other Lions members came to the rescue.

First there was Ray Paquin. Then there was Cliff Bolton. He was followed by Bob Langlois, who was followed by State Rep. Jim Miceli.

By this time Father Joe began to get the idea. These men were not introducing him to the audience. They were giving him a good old fashioned roast.

Then there was Charlie Stella, and Brian Bateson. Wayne Anderson followed, Bill Hurton was next with Fred Baldwin bringing up the rear. Dr. Manuel followed the speakers by

Billerica development to use Tewksbury water

Tewksbury Selectmen, acting as the board of public works, voted unanimously June 11 to allow local developer Gary Patch to hook into the town's water supply by constructing a water main from Whipple Road into a ten acre lot he owns in Billerica and Tewksbury.

The development proposal calls for four house lots on the ten acres of land, nine of which are actually in Billerica. Patch proposes to gain access to the land by building a road off Whipple Rd., Tewksbury and proposed to use Tewksbury's water system to supply the development. The water pipe he plans to install will run under the proposed road off Whipple Road.

Apparently, the Billerica portion of Patch's lot can not be easily accessed from an existing Billerica road or water line. Patch said gaining access off Whipple Road and using the water lines in Tewksbury is the plan that makes the most sense and has the least amount of complications.

Some 20 feet of the proposed road will be on Tewksbury land while the remaining 375 feet will be on Billerica land.

The board agreed to the request, but said they would have to work out the details of who will maintain the road and the water line with Billerica officials. Selectmen were also concerned over whether Tewksbury would be able to place a lien on property in Billerica if water bills are not paid.

Since there is no other access to the site from a Billerica Road, Selectman Bill Hallisey asked which town is going to be responsible for plowing and maintaining the road. Hallisey said Billerica may be a little weary of having to come into Tewksbury in order to plow the proposed deadend roadway and added that both towns have got to come to some sort of agreement on the plan before construction can start.

Selectman Paul Sullivan suggested the board approve the request and talk to Billerica to iron out any of the potential problems. Tewksbury, Sullivan said, should not take responsibility for the portion of the water line or the road that is on the Billerica side until the problems are ironed out.

Yankees edge White Sox, 3-2

Senior League

Yankees 3 White Sox 2

Chris D'Antonio's long sacrifice fly in the fifth inning broke up a tight pitcher's duel and the Yankees held on for a hard fought 3-2 win over the White Sox. Winning pitcher Jason Bere scattered five hits and struck out eight. Joe Magliozzi, Chris Lee, Mark Lee and Mike Robichaud had the Yankee hits.

Hard luck loser Mark Thurlow allowed only four hits and struck out 14. Danny Woods, Steve Hanafin, Mike Spencer, Chris Allan and Frankie Cenca had the White Sox hits.

Offensive gems for the Yankees Pat Nally, Jon Oliver, Jamie Robichaud and Mike Robichaud, who played a great game behind the plate.

Yankees 9 Royals 4

The Yankees raised their record to 8-9 with a 9-4 win over a scrappy Royals team. The Yankee offense led by Chris Lee with two hits and Pat Nally, Mike Robichaud, Chris D'Antonio and John McGrath with one each. Winner in relief Chris Lee and Pat Nally combined on a two-hitter with nine strikeouts.

Paul Trites allowed only six hits and struck out five. Both Royals hits were by Chris Ward.

For the Yankees, defensively Steve Pasquale, Jason Bere, Chris Lee and Jamie Robichaud made good plays.

Orioles 10 Twins 7

Oriole Dave Schmitt went the distance for his second win of the season. Schmitt gave up seven hits for seven runs and struck out seven. At the plate he went three for four with two doubles and two RBI's. Jim Pelletier had two RBI's and combined with Jeff Murphy and Scotty McMillan for a 5-4-3 doubleplay Mike Dunn also went three for four with an RBI.

For the Twins, Tuxbury, Smith and Billy Burns all hit doubles. Twins pitching struck out 10 but gave up 15 hits and eight walks. The winning pitcher was Dave Schmitt; the loser was Fenton.

Orioles 3 Royals 0

Royal Mike Panarello fanned five and walked six, gave up one hit and one run up to the fourth before giving way to Mario Martinello, who pitched just as well with 2 k's and two hits, but Orioles senior righty Brian (Guffy) Gibson shut the Royals out, striking out seven, allowing two free passes and scattering four hits. Guffy had seven assists and one putout. His teammate Mike O'Brien (Obie) drove in the winning run in the third.

That's all Guffy needed, but Mike (Speedy) Scalfan scored from third on a passed ball and Chuck McEwin hit a double and also scored. The three pitchers and two teams played an excellent game. The winning pitcher was Brian Gibson; the loser was Mike Panarello.

Orioles 10 Red Sox 7

The Orioles chased Red Sox starter Smith early in first inning. The Sox brought in Joey Malfa who k'd Eric Palm for the third out. Malfa pitched well, striking out six and giving up three passes, but the Orioles went ahead in the third inning to stay. Orioles pitchers Dana Surprenant and Scott McMillan combined to pitch a four-hitter, striking out 10, but errors helped the Sox to score seven runs. Oriole Tim Pelletier went two for three with a double and three RBI's. Dave Schmitt went 2-3 with a triple. Red Sox Joey Vieira went two for three with two doubles.

Winning pitcher Dave Surprenant, save Scott McMillan; losing pitcher Joe Malfa.

Orioles 12 Tigers 4

Brian Gibson struck out five, scattered seven hits and gave up four runs as he notched his second straight win for the Orioles as his teammate pounded Tigers Santos for 11 hits and 12 runs. Scott McMillan went three for three with a triple and three RBI's.

Dave King and Chuck McEwin both hit doubles and each had two RBI's. Jeff Murphy and Dana Surprenant also hit doubles. Winning pitcher was Brian Gibson; loser Dan Santos.

Orioles 12 White Sox 5

Both teams had problems in the first inning that took one hour to play. Orioles starter Jim Pelletier couldn't find the strike zone after giving up a leadoff double to John Gage. He walked four and gave up four runs. Joe Spencer, White Sox starter, returned the favor and more. He gave up nine runs on two hits, six walks and his teammates committed five errors.

The Orioles McEwin took over for Pelletier and White Sox Bobek relieved Spencer. John Gage provided the best White Sox offense, going three for four with a double. The Orioles' Dave Schmitt went three for three with an RBI and three runs scored. Dave King had two RBI's for the winners.

A's 20 Indians 12

The A's pretty much set the tone with 11 runs in their half of the first inning, then just chipped away, adding to the score each inning until the umpire called it in the sixth due to darkness.

Dave Connell led the A's with four hits. Kwiatowski, Pagliannio and Walsh went two for three. White and Mike LaCarva were two for four. DiMaggio and Barrett each got on base four straight times with bases on balls.

Regan and Lowney both scored three of the four times they were on base, accounting for half the Indians total runs scored.

A's 4 Yankees 3

Many excellent defensive plays kept the game close, as Bobby Fisher went all the way. Lombard struck out the last three batters to get the win, and totalled seven k's for the game.

A's 5 Red Sox 4

A great defensive game for both teams. Joey Vieira went all the way for the Red Sox. Red Sox had to go to four pitchers to get the win (Lombard gets it in two innings of relief). Adam Pagliantio had a home run and Greg Smith rapped a triple. Both teams scratched out the singles and stole bases to keep it close.

A's 11 Tigers 9

Timely hitting by Pagliantio (3-3 and BB), DeFronzo (3-4 and BB), Kwiatowski and Cannell (each 2-4) lead to the win.

Major League Division

Orioles 8 Red Sox 5

The Battling Birds proved too much for the high flying Red Sox, as the Orioles rallied behind the strong pitching of Bobby McDonald, Bill Kerrigan and Eric D'Antonio. Steve McGlinchey, Derek Stokes and Mike Morris all played a great two way game as they were excellent at bat as well as in the field. Amy Burns played well defensively for the Sox.

Tigers 5 Indians 0

Darryl Grant's fine pitching and Ken Vachon's game winning single keyed the Tigers' victory. Defensive plays by Brian MacDonald, Mike Pilcher, Joe McFadyen, and Chris Nolan saved the Tigers' shutout.

Kevin Fuller pitched a fine game for the Indians and Kevin Gibson rapped out two hits and made a fine catch in centerfield.

White Sox 14 Orioles 2

Bobby 'Moose' Caruso scattered 11 hits, while driving in five runs with two hits of his own, as the White Sox bested the Orioles. Joey Wright, Danny Godin, Bobby Anderson, George Orfay and Dennis Walsh rapped out key hits for the Sox. Joey Wright made an excellent catch in rightfield. The O's offense was led by Mike Morris (3-4), Derrek Stokes (2-4), Steve McGlinchey (2-4) and Mark Garnett.

Dodgers 12-10, Braves 8-5

The Dodgers took a pair from the battling Braves. The Dodgers received outstanding games from Kevin McArthur, Tom Aprile, Brian Gargon, Brian Mullins, Brian O'Mally and Chris Patterson in earning these two victories.

Astros 8 Braves 6

The Astros scored six runs in the first inning and held on to defeat the battling Braves. Tim McArdie's catch in rightfield saved the game for the Astros. Jeff Morin, Jason Morin, Jeff Vallier and Jackie Sullivan had key hits for the Astros.

Dodgers 13 Mets 11

The Dodgers' offense was led by Chris Patterson, Tom Aprile, and Brian Gagnon, while Mike Botte turned in some fancy glove work.

The Mets' offense was supplied by Chris Luce, Brian Riccio, Chris Adams and Shawn Perrault.

Junior boys basketball

Boys eight, nine, 10, 11 and 12 years old are being sought to start a junior boys basketball team for this summer, starting July 13 through September 2, playing on Saturday and Sunday between 5:30 and 8:30 p.m.

There will be a $15.00 registration fee payable at the time of registration which will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., Saturday, June 22 at Villanova Hall.

Summer basketball

The Wilmington Youth Basketball Association will hold a summer basketball clinic for students who will be entering the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades this fall.

The clinic will be held for three weeks on Tuesday and Thursday evenings beginning July 30 and ending August 15 between the hours of 6 and 9 p.m. at the North Intermediate School gym.

Registration will be limited to 40 students. Please call Al Maiella at 658-4386 to register. A fee of $12.00 per student is required to cover gym costs. Bob Butler and Bob Perry will conduct the clinic.

Bentley basketball

Once again Bentley College will offer a pair of basketball camps this summer. Once called

Academic Basketball Awareness Camp

For the fifth summer, 125 boys will spend a week learning the fine points of basketball and in the process gain a new appreciation of the importance of education.

Merrimack College will host the Academic Basketball Awareness Camp (A.B.A.) on the college's North Andover campus from Thursday, June 27 through Wednesday, July 3. The boys, ranging in age from eight to 16, will stay at the Monican Center residence hall and spend their time in a variety of basketball clinics and academic enrichment programs.

The program is directed by Bert Hammel, head basketball coach of the Merrimack College Warriors, and coordinated by Steve Kelley and Bill Robertson of the Lawrence Boys' Club. The program began as a day camp for 50 boys for five days in 1981.

Today, the ABA is a seven day overnight program for 125 boys chosen from over 200 applying.

"When I was an assistant coach with the Milwaukee Bucks," coach Hammel recalls, "Junior Bridgeman ran free clinics for young people, under a corporate sponsorship. I promised myself that if I ever

Spartans 4 Falcons 3

In action on June 8, the Spartans came out a winner in this hotly contested game with two goals each by Gary Walsh and Gregg Scurka and excellent all-around play by Nick Fiore and Derek Franek and great goaltending by Joe Estee.

The Falcons Joey Centrella scored two goals, with one for Peter O'Callahan, two assist points to Sal Ruocchio and one to Cindy Raymond, with fine work in goal by Tommy Bryant.

Dynamos 3 Clippers 3

These teams tied for first place going into this match, and with the tie are still tied for first place. The Dynamos' offense was led by Steve Gunther with two goals and Billy Wengel's first goal of the season. Super efforts by Kevin Simard at halfback and fullback, Katie Bolton at halfback and Vicky Bolton at fullback kept the game even.

The Clippers' Billy Carroll scored two goals, with one for Chad DiCalagero. Excellent midfield performances by Maria Giglio, Tim Keefe and Missy Carroll contributed to their being in this game all the way.

Cougars 3 Astros 0

The Cougars' Sal Reitano scored two goals and Tina Connor the other for the win. Credit Danny Sprague and Mike Bone with assists and Adam Grund, the fine center fullback, to put this in the win column.

The Astros hung tough all the way, with fine work by Brian McCadden in net, David Wiley and Adam Frasca at halfback and Sara Smith and Kristie Andrews on defense.

'the best basketball camp in New England' a boys' resident camp will be held August 4-9. The boys' and girls' day camp will follow two weeks later, August 19-23.

Bentley College Athletic Director Al Shields and men's basketball coach Frank Sullivan will serve as directors for the resident camp, while Shields and women's basketball coach Kathy Sanborn will handle the same role during the day camp.

Shields, the only athletic director in Bentley history, served as the college's first basketball coach, a position he held from 1963-78. During that time, he guided the Falcons to a 258-106 record and a string of five consecutive NCAA Division

II tournament appearances (1972-76).

Sullivan and Sanborn both met with great success this past season, their first as head coaches at Bentley. Both guided their respective teams to 25-6 records and an NCAA tournament berth.

Sullivan, who received a number of Coach of the Year awards for his efforts during the 1984-85 campaign, was a Division I assistant for 10 years prior to his appointment at Bentley. Most recently, he had worked under P.J. Carlesimo at Seton Hall.

For additional information, call the athletic office at 891-2993.

Wilmington police news

A Billerica woman, Marie A. Caruso, was arrested by Officer Jim Peterson at 1 a.m. last Thursday and charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, failure to keep to the right, and failure to stop at a traffic signal.

Friday morning Officer Jon Shepard arrested a Reading man, Edward Harrison of Dunbar Street. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and weaving between lanes in traffic.

Officer Jim White arrested Christopher Ford of Dorothy Avenue, Wilmington Friday evening on two warrants, one from Lynnfield and one from North Reading. He was turned over to the North Reading police.

Saturday, at about 2 a.m. Officer Chris Neville arrested a local man after investigation of an accident at Pinewood and Cedarcrest Roads. Stanley Kotowski, 21, of Oakdale Road was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol. He was bailed for a Monday appearance in court.

Officer Jim Cuoco arrested a Lawrence woman Saturday afternoon after investigating the larceny of merchandise in the DeMoulas Market. Tamara Chamard of Alston Street, Lawrence, was charged with shoplifting.

Two juveniles were arrested Sunday morning after investigation of a break into a Main Street home near Grove Avenue. Officers King and Venuti made the arrests.

A Lowell man was arrested Monday night by Inspectors Jepson and McKenna. Alan K. Loring of Bowers Street, Lowell also gave a Stuart Street, Wilmington address. Loring was arrested for receiving stolen property after an investigation of a missing Wang computer. He was additionally charged with possession of marijuana and public drinking.

The Wang computer was said to be originally valued at $25,000 and was reported to have been one of 21 computers taken from a trailer truck at American Transportation, in Cummings Park, Woburn.

A North Reading man was arrested about 2 a.m. Tuesday by Officer Jim Peterson and Sgt. Herbert Peterson on multiple charges. Alexander D. Paicos, 18, of Sunset Avenue, was charged with carrying a loaded firearm without first obtaining a license to carry. Further investigation into his vehicle revealed four handguns which had been stolen from a North Reading home the previous day.

The guns included a Colt 357 python model, a Colt 357 magnum, an Echasa Ebar 32 caliber automatic and a Smith & Wesson 38 caliber special. Paicos was held overnight and taken to court Tuesday.

There were nine accidents, 27 alarms, and 10 arrests during the past week. There were 12 disturbances, seven cases of breaking and entering, four cases of domestic problems and 10 cases of larceny.

Six persons were taken into protective custody, there were five reports of suspicious activity, seven traffic complaints, four trailbike complaints, and 10 reports of vandalism.

Among the items reported stolen were gasoline, truck tires, bikes, money, video tapes, a trailbike and a computer.

The department was called once to assist another department.

Women's Club awards scholarship

The Wilmington Women's Club has awarded, as part of its community service, scholarships to two deserving students. Debbie Igco, a senior from Wilmington High school and Christopher Smith of Shawsheen Tech were granted these scholarships at graduation.

Presented a scholarship by the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs to study in the field of international affairs was Christina DeLuca of Winchester. She received this award at the annual meeting of MSFWC held recently at the Seacrest Hotel in Falmouth. Dedicated to community service with emphasis on education, this year the MSFWC awarded $13,600.00 in financial aid, $8000.00 of which was for graduate study. These awards are available annually to any resident of Massachusetts through his or her local Women's Club.

Attending the annual conference from Wilmington were Jean Sottile, Judi Simmons, Jean Hartka, Edith Michelson, Liz White and Marion Woller. Part of the program included the honoring of three outstanding Massachusetts women, Kathryn Broman, a woman pioneer in the field of television; Zeren Earls, a native of Turkey who was instrumental in founding "First Night," the family celebration of New Year's; and Kip Tiernan, the dynamic lady of "Rosie's Place" who left the audience speechless.

One of the speakers at the meeting was Charles Austin, Eyewitness News, WBZ-TV who brought film and spoke of his recent trip to Ethiopia.

Red, white & blue

A beautiful red, white and blue quilt will be raffled off during the Fourth of July Celebration in Wilmington, thanks to Betty Downs of Ayotte Street. She kept herself busy during the winter knitting the quilt while watching television. Her husband Francis (left) was with her when she presented the quilt to Jack Cushing of the Fourth of July Committee.

Concerts shift to Wednesdays, begin next week

The Wilmington Recreation Department presents the eighth annual Sounds of Summer Concert series for the listening pleasure of all Wilmington residents.

The concert series begins on Wed., June 26 when the West Intermediate School will have an ice cream smorgasbord on the common to help the Scott D. Braciska Wilmington High Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Concert days, Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9 p.m. with raindates Thursday (the following evening).

Wednesday, June 26: E.J. Sundown (today's country hits, yesterday's favorites plus original material). Sponsored by Aamco Transmissions and Analog Devices.

Wednesday, July 10: Gaslight Quarter (Roaring 20's with banjo mandolin and guitars). Sponsored by F&R Auto Parts, Koch Membrane Systems, Inc. Wednesday, July 17: Country Limited (oldies with a bit of country). Sponsored by Massbank for Savings and Dunkin Donuts.

Wednesday, July 24: The Country Fever Band (country music with style and tradition). Sponsored by Compugraphic and Charles River Breeding Labs.

Wednesday, July 31: The Christopher James Band (an acoustic presentation with original music, easy listening). Sponsored by Realty World Forest-Conant and Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

Fourth of July Concerts, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, July 2 through 6.

A treat for any age

Strawberry shortcake is always a treat for young or old. At a strawberry festival held recently at the Harnden Tavern in North Wilmington, Barbie and Billy Tate dove right in and made short work of their shortcake. Mary and Fred Worby (below) also enjoyed their springtime treat, in a slightly more reserved manner. The strawberry festival was run by the Friends of the Harnden Tavern.

Lisa Spahl receives scholarship

Lisa Rae Spahl, daughter of Raymond and Betty Spahl, of Draper Drive, Wilmington, recently received the Annie L. Cox Scholarship during the honors convocation of the 110th commencement ceremonies at the Massachusetts College of Art.

Alumni-ae award recipient and professor of art education and fine arts Marilyn Pappas, delivered the convocation address to the Mass Art community and spoke of the excitement awaiting the over 240 graduating artists as they set forth in their careers in the arts.

Lisa, a freshman, received the award for her outstanding achievement in The Mass College of Arts Freshman Program. She is interested in painting.

Wilmington's Fourth of July gets easier each year

by Arlene Surprenant
"It gets easier every year," said Fun on the Fourth committee chairman Jack Cushing in an interview last Friday. He was referring to the work undertaken by his "handpicked" 13 member committee, which meets regularly from January through June to sift through the many details inherent in Wilmington's Fourth of July celebration.

This year, the celebration will run from Tuesday, July 2 through Saturday, July 6 and will feature such new participants as the Marine Corps League and Drill Team and the Air Force Band.

Also featured will be breakfasts and suppers on the common, hosted by local organizations; sports events such as the Triathlon and a women's two mile walk, to encourage resident participation; children's events and parades; the annual art exhibit and crafts show; a week long carnival at the high school; and spectacular fireworks displays on both Wednesday and Friday nights.

Red, white, and blue T-shirts, sweatshirts, and hats with the Fun on the Fourth logo imprinted on them will be for sale in the Fourth of July building, as well meal and carnival tickets. According to Cushing, tickets for meals will be numbered and sold at least 24 hours before a meal to avoid some of the problems of last year. Carnival tickets will not be sold in advance, but may be purchased for 50 cents during the run of the carnival.

At one of their final meetings last Tuesday, members hammered out several last minute details. Such decisions as paying this year's ticket sellers, what prizes to award, back-up plans for inclement weather, and parking facilities and road closings came under discussion.

It was decided to close Middlesex Avenue from School Street to the end of the common to traffic during most of the festivities. The parking lot by the Fourth of July headquarters will be available for parking with handicapped parking tentatively available at the Baptist Church. It is anticipated Church Street will be open to traffic, except during the bed race.

Members also agreed to give the Fourth of July building a fresh coat of white paint complete with red and blue shutters.

Each committee member, volunteers all, is responsible for a particular aspect of the week long activities. Committee members are Paul Bova, John Brown, Jack Cushing, Dennis DeMaggio, Bob Dicey, Dick Fudge, Jill Gillis, Kathi Gillis, Joan Maga, Joan Searfoss, Frank Sferazza, Ken Spinelli and Jim Stewart.

Group promotes health care alternatives

A group of concerned professional and lay people have been meeting for the past several months in Wilmington for the purpose of creating greater public awareness to alternatives traditional health care as well as for group members to "network" with each other. The group consists of a chiropractor; an RN - wellness educator; two RN's who do therapeutic touch; two polarity therapists; a myotherapist; a yoga instructor; a physical therapist; a dietary consultant and area president of the Cancer Control Society and National Health Federation; a health food store owner; a clearing consultant; and several representatives from various nutri-level marketing companies which deal with distributing vitamins and minerals. These people come from Wilmington, Burlington, Billerica, Wakefield, Winchester and Lexington.

They have put together alternative health care directory for this area which will be available at the group's last meeting of the season - Thursday, June 26 at the home of Pat and Dave Newhouse. For further information about the group or obtaining copies of the directory, contact Jane Emery-Downey at 658-4054 or Joan Kritter at 658-3764.

Wilmington senior topics

June social Thursday

The June therapeutic social will be held this Thursday at the Windsor Mills in Dracut. The buses will leave the Senior Center at 11:15 a.m. Those who have signed up and find they cannot attend the dinner are asked to call the Center as there is a waiting list.

Arts and crafts picnic

The Arts and Crafts Committee will be host of the seniors at their annual arts and crafts picnic. The affair will be held on the picnic grounds of the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks Thursday, July 11. The day will begin at 9 a.m. with coffee and muffins. At noon a dinner of chicken, potato, salad, corn, coffee and punch with watermelon for dessert will be served. A $2.00 non refundable deposit will be required by the committee when signing up. Having this year donated $3000 to the seniors for the renovation of the Buzzell Center, this deposit money will help defray the cost of the day. Signing up for this social will take place Friday, June 21.

Dance class cancelled

The dance class will not be held Friday, June 21 and the following Friday will be the last session until September. This program is one of the most popular at the Center. The reason for the success of the dance class is the excellent instruction of the volunteer teachers, Fred and Mary McEvoy.

Nurse at Center June 27

The nurse will not be at the Senior Center this Thursday, June 20, because of the social. On Thursday, June 27 she will administer the diabetes test and check blood pressures.

Summer bowling

The summer bowling program has started. Any senior who wishes to join the bowlers may do so by going to the Candlewood Lanes in North Reading any Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

Exercise classes to continue

The exercise class will continue throughout the summer as long as those seniors involved want the program continued. Any senior may join the program on Monday and Wednesday mornings at the Center at 10 o'clock.

Clothes available

There are many clothes at the Center which are donated to the seniors. Some of them are winter coats and jackets, mens and womens slacks and shoes. Those looking for this type of clothing should drop by the Center and try any of them on. Since storage space is limited at the center, clothes not taken before others arrive and taken to nursing homes and the Pine Street Inn.

Write your Congressmen

The National Council of Senior Citizens has called on every member of the U.S. Senate to defeat a proposal to eliminate the Social Security cost of living adjustment for fiscal year 1986 when it when it reaches the Senate floor. If the Senate and House approve the cut, beneficiaries would lose an average half a month's Social Security benefit. Those who will be hit the hardest would be single women, those who now receive the lowest benefits. For example, a widow receiving $415 now would lose $199.20. A retired couple receiving $776 would lose $372.48. If you have not sent a letter to your senators and representatives, informing them of the burden this cut will place on you, it would be wise to do so now before the cut has been approved.

State's first identification program

Keeping track of Stoneham's kids

On Saturday, June 8, Dr. Frank Odum conducted the first in the state Children's Identification Clinic for the children of Stoneham incorporating fingerprints with other forms of identification.

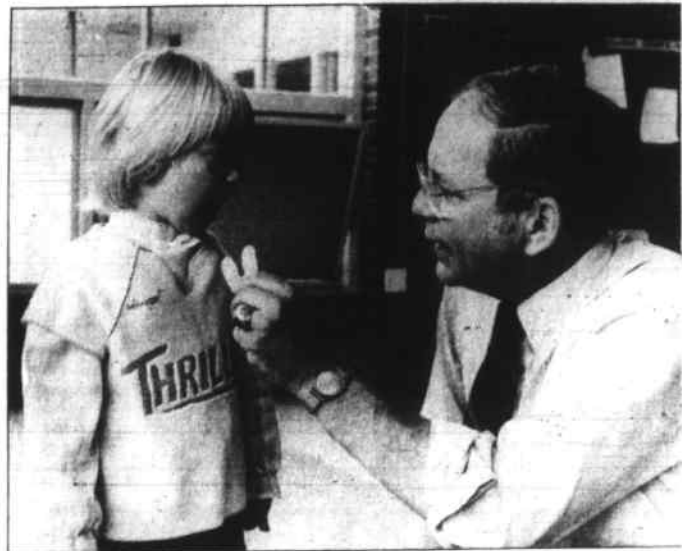

Dr. Odum, who has practiced dentistry in Stoneham for 23 years, organized the town through a series of meetings with school administrators, police, local dentists, television appearance and talks to those interested. It was through the cooperation of these groups that made this clinic possible.

Over 400 children between the ages of three through 12 participated having height and weight, toothprints, fingerprints and photos compiled into a single kit. Dr. Odum said it's an example of how we in the professions can contribute in a positive way to this national problem of missing children. He hopes other communities will follow Stoneham's example and sponsor similar identification clinics. Those dentists that gave freely of their time included: Drs. Chris Bacos, John D'Orlando, Dan Fitzgerald, Susan Fitzgerald, Guy Guarnaccia, Neil Hornung, Gilbert Meyers, Howard Sepowitz, Robert Simpson and Allen Tarro. The fingerprinting was performed by Officer William Surette of the Stoneham Police Department assisted by Officer George Alger, Officer

FM TALK: A cornucopia of thoughts crossed our far-flung correspondent's mind this week. The following are just a few of them:

The Susan Wornick case was yet another example of how ironically our justice system can work. Ms. Wornick, who, as nearly everybody from around these parts must know by now, is also the wife of Channel 4 sports director Bob Lobel, was accused by a judge of "frustrating justice" because she wouldn't cooperate with the authorities - the authorities in this case being the police in Revere - in bringing to justice members of the Revere police department who were alleged to have taken part in the burglary of a pharmacy in Revere. The allegations surfaced in a report done by Ms. Wornick for WCVB-TV in which an anonymous source revealed that he actually witnessed the burglary taking place.

What distresses this columnist is how a judge could say Ms. Wornick frustrated justice simply because she refused to reveal the name of her source. The judge, as well as everybody else, know that Ms. Wornick would never be able to dig up a story like the one about the Revere police department if informants aren't allowed to remain anonymous. Is protecting the lives of informants used by the media any less important than protecting the lives of informants used by, say, the federal government when they're putting together a key case? With all the technological advances in law enforcement, it is ludicrous to believe that the Revere police department can't take the evidence that currently exists against certain officers to help bring them to justice. The frustrating of justice wasn't Ms. Wornick's fault. It was the fault of the legal apparatus that is falling short of performing its own duties. It is abhorrent to think that a judge could believe for even one moment that a single female reporter could be held responsible for whether or not this case against the members of the Revere police department alleged to be involved in that burglary will ever be brought to justice.

Another branch of the legal system may play a major role in whether or not professional baseball players go on strike sometime in the next month. Negotiations between the players union and the owners is apparently going nowhere at the moment, and it may take a judge to decide whether there will be baseball after the all-star break.

Frankly, this columnist is finding it difficult to sympathize any longer with the players, especially when the sports pages were filled with pre-season stories about all the multi-million dollar deals that were struck up this year. Sports fans don't have to look very far down the rosters of major league teams to find .240 hitters who are earning a million dollars or more a year. So when these .240 hitters get before tv cameras to complain that the owners are cheating them out of a fair pension plan, it's hard to feel sorry for them. I'm worried about my retirement too, and I don't earn a million bucks a year. Let some of these millionaire ball players sign up for a good IRA plan, as many of us working folks concerned about our retirement have to do.

Doug DeCinces, one of the stars of the California Angels, doesn't agree with me, and he told me why when he spoke to the press following a recent game with the Red Sox. DeCinces feels that there are only about 650 players in professional baseball. "We are the best in the world," he said, adding that they deserve to be given bigger rewards just as guys like Dan Rather and Prince and Eddie Murphy deserve big rewards because they are the best in their respective fields.

But the truth is, just because one is a professional baseball player doesn't mean that he is automatically entitled to these big rewards. Only the best of the best deserve to be rewarded. Behind Dan Rather is a whole slew of tv reporters who don't come close to earning two million dollars a year. When a ball player demonstrates that he can play as well as a Ted Williams, and draw a crowd as well as a Ted Williams, then he deserves

DUSK
The little birds cease their twittering
Their melodious voices are still
For dusk is slowly creeping
O'er every valley and hill
The flowers have closed their petals
Their fragrance they no longer spread,
For dusk has made them sleepy,
And they have gone to bed.
Dusk! The time of day one loves,
God somehow seems so near,
And a benediction settles down
Upon us mortals here.

to earn all that big money. But if he turns out to be just a mediocre .200 hitter who couldn't attract horseflies to a ball park, why should he get a rewarding contract and lifetime pension just because he has made it to the majors?

FOUR-FOOTED FUN

What has four legs, is furry all over and is good for us both physically and emotionally? You probably guessed it—the family pet!

At least one former major league baseball player is trying something different to help secure a new career for himself. He's Johnny Bench, who just debuted as - of all things - a musical comedy star. Johnny appeared as Shoeless Joe Hardy in a benefit performance of "Damn Yankees" at the Riverbend Music Center in Cincinnati last week. I didn't see the performance, so it wouldn't be fair of me to pass judgement on Bench's acting ability. But since so many former athletes are attempting careers in show business, why shouldn't Johnny Bench throw his hat - no pun intended - into the ring?

If you're interested in sporting ventures, have I got the challenge for you. Sporting Ventures, Ltd., of Boston, is offering those with financial means the chance to go sporting with aristocracy. According to their literature, Sporting Ventures, Ltd. "takes a selected number of discriminating travelers on sophisticated and luxurious sporting vacations." Among the sporting vacations offered are equestrian events, tennis matches, rowing and racing, and fishing, golfing and shooting as guests of nobles. Sporting Ventures, Ltd. also offers what they describe as fascinating side trips to private gardens, castles, galleries, stud farms and clubs. The tours are offered once a month, and they last two weeks. Sounds ducky to me, however, I'll pass on the soccer matches in Europe, thank you.

One final note, again somewhat along the sporting lines: According to several sources, actor Jack Nicholson was rumored to have stayed at the Marriott Hotel, in Burlington, during his recent stays in Boston during the Celtics-Lakers NBA championship series. Nicholson had been staying at the Marriott Hotel at Copley Place, along with the members of the Lakers organization. However, according to these sources, Nicholson was swiftly shuttled via limousine out to the suburban hotel. I wonder if Nicholson proved to be too much for the Boston hotel to handle, or if the actor simply wanted some peace and quiet. In either case, I haven't been able to confirm the rumor. I will, however, stay on the story and let you readers know down the road the story behind the story. In the meantime, make it a good week.

Cleo Schimmel named director

A beautician for All Seasons

Cleo Schimmel of Lexington, a professional Color Consultant, has been promoted to the position of Director with Beauty For All Seasons.

Beauty For All Seasons is the world's largest color consulting company, with thousands of affiliated, independent Consultants throughout the United States, Canada, and in several foreign countries. These Consultants specialize in color analysis, skin care and makeup consulting, and wardrobe planning for both women and men.

To become a Director, Schimmel achieved an outstanding sales record and demonstrated excellent leadership skills. In her new position, Schimmel will be given additional management responsibilities within the organization.

According to company President, Norma Virgin, "We feel our Consultants provide the best services available in the color and cosmetic industry, and we are confident that the leadership provided by people like Cleo will keep us in the forefront of this growing business.

Schimmel joined Beauty For All Seasons as an independent consultant two years ago. Since then, she has provided hundreds of private consultations from her office at 44 Sanderson Road, Lexington, and has worked with groups of all sizes from adult education classes to professional networking organizations.

She is at ease suggesting the right colors to harmonize with your natural coloring, creating a complimentary wardrobe, choosing accessories that accent your individuality, and offering a personalized skin care routine.

SUMMER FITNESS PROGRAMS

Some people don't join a summer exercise program because they know they'll be on vacation several weeks and don't want to pay for classes they will miss.

This summer New England Memorial Hospital offers fitness programs where participants pay only for the days they will attend.

Several classes are scheduled and most will be held in the hospital's air-conditioned, carpeted auditorium. Upon registration, class fees will be reduced on a prorated basis for classes missed due to vacations.

Courses offered include Aerobics, Monday and Wednesday at 5:30 p.m.; Exercise for Health, Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m.; Women's Fitness, Tuesday and Thursday at 5:30 p.m.; and two Karate classes, one for adults and one for children, on Tuesday evenings.

New this summer is an exercise class at 11:30 p.m., Mondays and Wednesdays, for people who work the evening shift and want to unwind before going home.

All of the classes are taught by hospital health professionals and are open to the public. For information or to register call NEMH Health Education, 665-1740, ext. 426.

Take in the scenic views of Boston Harbor in a cafe-like setting while sampling french hors d'oeuvres and pastries like "Pate de Poisson" and "Mousse aux Fruit de la Passion" created by chefs from the Cookery Catering Service of Norwell and the Meriden Hotel. Sip complimentary B & B liqueurs and Benedictine cocktails, dance to the smooth sounds of The Back Bay Brass Quintet, and take a different look at the harbor from onboard the Aquarium's vessel, Voyager, during special Harbor cruises.

Cruises depart at 6:00 p.m. and 6:45 p.m. Seating is limited. Cocktails, refreshments and cruises are included in the $15.00 ticket price.

Proceeds from "Le French Toast" will benefit the New England Aquarium and ticket prices are tax deductible. For reservations or further information call 973-5207.

FREE COURSES TO ELDERS

Boston University is offering hundreds of courses to elders 60 years or older on a space-available basis for non-credit participation and a registration fee of $10 per course.

Classes begin July 2. Registration takes place at 118 Bay State Road, 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. or call Summer Term and Continuing Education at 353-4128.

SUMMER TRIPS

The Spar and Spindle Girl Scout Council announces new opportunities for adventure this summer for girls who have completed grades 6 through 12. Four weekend trips and two day trips open to all girls, non-scouts too, are planned for July and August. The trips are designed for girls who have commitments during the week but would like to do something special on the weekends or one day during the week. A nominal fee will cover all food and transportation costs.

The weekend trips will be a fun and relaxing time for both girls, who attend and adult chaperones. Plenty of spaces remain for both. Weekend visits to Cape Cod are planned for both July and August. In July, girls will have the opportunity to explore the scenic Berkshires in western Massachusetts; in August a weekend trip to the southern Maine coastal area will be offered.

Both day trips offered to girls this summer will take place in July. On July 16, girls will take to their bicycles to explore the Andover area. On July 9, foot power will be the mode of transportation as girls hike Mt. Monadnock in Jaffrey, N.H.

For more information on these summer adventures, both as girl participants or adult chaperones, call Lydia McAnerney at the Spar and Spindle Girl Scout Council, 689-8015 or 745-1404.

CULTURAL EXCHANGE

"Bonjour" and "Buenos dias" are the only phrases needed to welcome a visiting student into your home this summer. Nacel Cultural Exchanges encourages Americans to open their hearts and homes to a youngster from France or Spain. The non-profit organization arranges homestays during the summer when families enjoy a more relaxed way of life - an ideal time to share a baseball game, a cookout or ice cream cone, or even vacation plans.

The students are eager to experience life in the U.S. They all speak English, are between the ages of 14 and 18, are fully insured, and have their own pocket money. The area coordinator, Virginia Adams, adds, "I review all the applications and letters written by the students and it is heartwarming to read of so many young people expressing their dream of coming to the United States."

Mrs. Adams has been involved with Nacel for the past twelve years. She points out that each prospective host family is considered individually. Families need not have teenagers so long as some arrangements are made for the visiting students to meet other young people. "One of the cultural differences we experience is the 'working family' in America. In Europe most teens do not have part time jobs and many women are not employed outside the home," explains Adams. Nacel attempts to find ways in which all families can join in the exchange experience.

The students will arrive June 30 to share their own culture while absorbing the American way of life for four weeks. Anyone interested in hosting a student should contact Mrs. Adams at 279 Pleasant St., Reading, Ma. 01867 or telephone (617) 944-7577 immediately for more information.

SINGERS WORKSHOP

The Treble Chorus of New England announces that the ninth annual Singers Workshop will be held at South Church in Andover August 12-16. Summer home of the regional Treble Chorus of New England, the Workshop welcomes musically-talented boys and girls ages 6-16. The Workshop will meet daily 9-2 culminating in a concert on Saturday evening.

Under the direction of its founder Marie Stultz the Singers Workshop is widely known for its high standards of classical music instruction. Ms. Stultz of North Reading is founder and artistic director of the parent choir The Treble Chorus of New England and is co-music director of the famed Old North Church in Marblehead. She is an active composer and conductor, with many private voice students.

Students who attend the Singers Workshop may elect to audition for the Treble Chorus of New England 1985-1986 concert season. This past performance season included concerts at Hammond Castle in Gloucester and an American Premier of a newly-discovered "Gloria" of Vivaldi in addition to an original "Pops" called "Pirates" based on Gilbert and Sullivan. Recent concerts have been given at Phillips Academy in Andover, a television appearance on Channel 5, a "30's and 40's" performance and a spring Brahms and Britten concert. On May 30, 1984 the Treble Chorus collaborated with Boston Musica Viva and M.I.T. Advanced Center for Visual Studies to present the American premier of Paul Earls's contemporary opera "Icarus". It featured a laser display, computer-synthesized music, giant inflatable sculpture and chamber ensemble in addition to the Treble Chorus. All were under the direction of Richard Pittman.

Musically-talented young people who enjoy choral and solo singing and would like an exciting music experience in the summer should seriously consider attending Singers' Workshop. Classes will be offered in voice, theory, music appreciation and classical choral repertoire. Spaces are now very limited. Please make an appointment with Choir Manager Jeanne Thomases, Reading (944-1876) for information.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Every city and town has a full or part time Sealers of Weights and Measures. It is their responsibility to inspect scales for correct weight and gasoline and fuel oil pumps, for full measures in gallons. They then place their seals of approval ensuring the public that they are getting what they pay for. Mr. Peter McCauley is a Sealer of Weights and Measures, who sang this song when he proposed to his wife many years ago. "I would seal the highest mountain and swim across the 'pounding' sea just to hear you say 'I love you' and that you'll 'weight' for me." Now after reading that "Chip" you can readily understand why this lovely young lady said to me while shopping at Woburn Supply Saturday, "Are you the creep that writes Woodchips?" "Yes I am," I replied. "But tell me lady why the compliment?" "Well," she continued, "I promised myself that the next time I read in your column that this person is wonderful and that lady is beautiful, I'd scream!" I smiled and said "the two exercises that are great for developing lung power are a real loud excruciating scream and a high decibel laugh. I'm sure you'll find material for both in Woodchips." Her "harpoon" not withstanding, I'll still say a person is wonderful and a lady is beautiful.

A helper fell off the edge of a roof being repaired. The foreman exclaimed, "I knew I should not have hired him. He looked like an 'eaves dropper' to me."

We had to call a plumber yesterday to free a blocked drain. After a half hour work he charged $100. My wife Kathy was furious. "Why" she told him, "we had the doctor here for Dennis last night and he only charged $50 and he was here over an hour." The man didn't blink an eyelash saying, "I know, I know, I was a doctor once myself."

It reminds me of the retirement party for my cousin, Chief Justice Salvatore Aloisi. I was seated at the same table with Oscar Jacobson of Stoneham and his son, Donald. They are two of the best automobile mechanics in the area. The conversation drifted to the high cost of labor. One comedian said "one must win the Megabucks in order to get a car fixed." Another person told of the sky rocketing cost of health care. A doctor at the table said he couldn't understand what right an auto mechanic had to charge almost as much as he did. I broke the silence that followed saying, "with all due respect doctor, have you looked under the hood of your car lately? Have you seen the complex components and maze of wires and cables?" "You of the medical profession are still working on the same model since Adam and Eve, while automobile mechanics must learn about a 'new' model of almost every make of car every year." It's a good thing the speeches started that put almost every one to sleep.

The young man nervously said, "Sir I would like to have your daughter for my wife." "Wal," replied the old gent, "bring your wife over tomorrow and then I'll tell you if I'd 'swap'."

Don't ever tell your friends their faults. They will correct the faults and never forgive you. And you may lose a valued friend.

No one likes to be ignored. One of the most important things that you can do as a parent, teacher or employer is to be just as quick to "praise" someone as you are to "criticize." Nobody, but nobody gets too many compliments or too much appreciation. Most people get far too little. They'd be a lot happier and do better work if they got more. If it's painful for you to criticize someone you're safe in doing it; if you take pleasure in it, hold your tongue.

My wife Kathy and I visited the Stone Zoo in Stoneham. As we walked in the attendant said to Kathy, "Thanks for bringing him back."

I noticed a crew working on a new 'trunk line' to the elephant house. I had called all week and the "lions" were all busy. A zebra was promoted since the last time I saw him — he had another 'stripe.' One of the workers was washing and cleaning the leopards until they were 'spotless.' I was amazed to see a gorilla fixing a water faucet with a 'monkey wrench.'

I have a new puppy and my neighbor said to me, "That's a beautiful dog. 'Spitz?'" "I don't know," I said, "but it sure does everything else."

The Wilmington Company of Minutemen, with Capt. Stu Neilson in command, held its annual Liberty Pole ceremony at Rotary Park. They represent and keep alive the history of farmers who left their fields in every Middlesex village and farm as they were alerted by

Paul Revere that "The British were coming!"

One of the many things that we detested old King George for was 'taxation without representation.' Now we have an excess of representation and have 'taxes' on food, stoves and cars — the coat for ma and also pa's — there's tax on houses, land and boats also horses, cows and nanny goats there's tax on meals, gas and tools also on carpets, rugs and swimming pools! thank the good Lord in Heaven above they haven't found a way to 'tax' love!

Movie Review
Police Academy 2: Their First Assignment Starring Steve Guttenberg, Art Metrano, Peter Van Norden, Howard Hesseman. Directed by Jerry Paris. Produced by Paul Maslansky. Written by Barry Blaustein and David Sheffield. Rated R.

Police Academy 2: Their First Assignment is quite convincing at being a marketing tool used to attract an audience of adolescent boys. Since it was directed by the man who directed many of the Dick Van Dyke shows and all of the Happy Days episodes, it is no surprise that it plays like an extended sit-com, complete with gross-out humor. And, as television is something teenagers understand and appreciate, Police Academy 2 will probably clean up at the box office.

The plot exists merely to surround the unassociated bits and sight gags that the original Police Academy was famous for. And, while two or three of the jokes made this reviewer laugh out loud, most did not. However, in all fairness, it must be said that maybe one half of the mostly young audience laughed regularly at the rather sophomoric jokes, including the ongoing rather disgusting gag about a recruit (Peter Van Norden) who will eat anything, no matter where he finds it.

What plot there is deals with the inept, graduating members of last year's Police Academy as they try to combat a punk crime wave. Nothing new here, as we've seen the gags before. As a matter of fact, the only character who really attracts any attention is the schizophrenic punk crime leader (Bob Goldthwait), who has as much trouble keeping his voice in control as he does his personality. The rest of the cast hasn't changed since last time, including Michael Winslow as a human sound effects machine and Bubba Smith as Hightower, a column of strength.

What is truly amazing about a movie like this is that it proves people will do anything for money. The original film was hardly a piece of art, but it really was funny, and made a lot of people rich. But funny once does not mean funny twice, as this sequel proves. Let's just hope someone tells the producers, as rumor has it that Police Academy III is already in the works.

The Silver Lake Spotlighters are in rehearsal for "A Tribute to Broadway." The benefit performances will be due on June 27, 28 and 29 at the Woburn Kennedy Junior High.

I remember when I was asked to be in a minstrel show and the producer asked, "Have you ever been on stage?" "No," I answered, "but I had my leg in a 'cast' once." He gave me a 'walk-on' part.

Congratulations to Karie Palm and Alyson McCabe, who were two of the 100 Girl Scouts who helped paint the trash barrels on Wilmington Common Green. Now I know why they are commonly known as 'The Village Green.'

Five beautiful young ladies were installed in the Wilmington Order of Rainbow Girls at ceremonies at the Masonic Temple. They are: Beth Patterson, Worthy Associate Advisor; Sonja Marten, Worthy Advisor; Dawn Stevens, Charity; Pamela DePalma, Faith; and Patty Stevens, Hope.

There is hardly anything in nature as beautiful as a 'rainbow.' Most of us don't have a reverent feeling for the rainbow like the Indians had because we know how it is made and what it is. We have lost as much as we have gained by prying into the matter.

Diane Higden of Burlington was a Rainbow Girl, and she is 'representative' to me of the very best in 'womanhood.'

THANK HEAVEN FOR LITTLE BOYS

A cyclone hit the bedroom, clothes are on the floor, Larry Bird's poster is taped to the closet door. The living room chairs and sofa are sagging with wear. The refrigerator shelves are almost always bare. The bathroom is always busy, there's water everywhere. The time spent in the shower just isn't fair. Our house is full of gloves and balls and never ending noise. I know you must have guessed it, we have a family of boys.

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

On Friday, June 28, Yevgeny Yevtushenko, the renowned Russian poet, will join saxophonist Paul Winter and the Paul Winter Consort at 8 PM in a unique concert at the Boston Opera House. In a blending of lyrical "earth music" and dramatic Russian verse, the performance will celebrate the common ground of nature among all nations. Reserved seats are $13.25 and $16.25 and are available at the Opera House Box Office, all Tickettrons, Teletron (720-3434), Out-of-Town News and at all Strawberries' locations.

Mail wanted

Mail for Tots, is looking for people to help them in cheering some seriously ill children. The youngsters for the most part are shut-ins. A good number are lonely and can use a bit of moral support. It takes just a few minutes to jot a cheerful message for a child. If you would like to receive the names and addresses you could cheer, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Mail for Tots, 25 New Chardon Street, P.O. Box 8699, Boston, Mass. 02114.

Tidal canoe trip

On Sunday, June 23, the Ipswich River Association is sponsoring a tidal canoe trip, to which the public is invited. The group will leave from

Woodman's, on the Causeway, Essex, at 10 AM and take out at the Town Landing in Ipswich. Participants should wear a jacket style life jacket and bring a lunch. The IRWA trips are free but call wait Harmer, Topsfield (887-8671) or Larry Morse, Beverly (922-0323) to make reservations and for further details.

Beaverbrook Bluegrass Festival

The Fifth Annual Beaverbrook Bluegrass Festival will be held August 3 and 4 on the grounds of the Harvard Sportsmen's Club, in Boxborough. Featuring Don Stover and the White Oak Mountain Boys, White Mountain Bluegrass, Yodeling Slim Clark, The Blackstone Valley Ramblers, Green Mountain Bluegrass, Smokey Greene, Bob & Grace French and the Rainbow Valley Folks, Bluegrass Supply Company and Cedar Ridge.

Weekend ticket holders and musicians begin arriving on Friday for the Saturday, and Sunday shows. The festival takes place on what is usually one of the hottest weekends of the summer. This usually means there is no rain, and lots of heat.

A good portion of the crowd bring their instruments for informal "jamming" away from the stage area. People should bring their own blanket or chair, food, and refreshments. Food can also be purchased from the cook shack run by the Harvard Sportsmen's Club.

For advance tickets or festival information, call Ken Marcus, 263-3362.

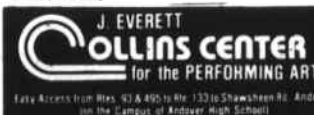

Newport Folk Festival

The Newport Folk Festival is to be held the same weekend as the Beaverbrook Bluegrass Festival, August 3 and 4, so you will have to make a choice. The Folk Festival will be held at Fort Adams State Park in Newport.

On Saturday, August 3rd, Joan Baez, Doc and Merle Watson, Buskin and Batteau, Ramblin' Jack Elliott, Greg Brown, Mimi Farina, Taj Mahal, Bill Morrissey and Keith & Rooney with Mark O'Connor will perform. On Sunday, August 4th, Judy Collins, Arlo Guthrie, Sweet Honey in the Rock, Dave Van Ronk, Tom Paxton, Peter Rowan, David Mallett, David Massengill and New Grass Revival will be featured.

Tickets are $16.50 in advance, $18 day of concert. For full schedule, write: Newport Folk Festival, P.O. Box 1221, Newport, Rhode Island 02840.

"Sounds" dominate, this week's offerings, with the sounds of nature, bluegrass and folk leading the way. But Coming Attractions needs more than just music to get by. If you know of an event of interest to all, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. The summer is the time to try all kinds of adventures.

Europe: Middlesex style

(Editor's note: This is the first of a series of stories from a recent trip to Europe, spent by the writer in the company of 29 others, including 22 high school students from Burlington, Wilmington and Andover.)

By JIM ROUILLARD

This is a tale of magpies and machine guns, of Spanish marmalade, pillow fights in Madrid, and the hospitality and beauty of two ancient, magnificent races and cultures.

It began in Spain's Costa del Sol, asplashed in Mediterranean warmth, the roadside rampant with clusters of wild crimson poppies beneath bone-white, cliff-edge mountain churches that gleam in the southern sun. It continued in the winding streets and canals of Italy, to the exquisite Sunday sound of churchbells, and a lingering time to talk art with the Austrians, fashion with the French, and philosophy with German teenagers, as the cats of Venice came begging for scraps.

Its ending? It will never end. For each of the Middlesex-area party came back from Europe with glittering eyes, a high heart, and the planned hope to return, as soon as possible.

Several of the group were so disoriented, in fact, after time spent with other people: Africans, Australians, Britons, Czechs, Dutch, French, Flemish, Indians, Irish, Pakistanis, Portuguese, Scots, Swiss — and even Californians — that we suffered culture shock to find so many Americans on the plane back home.

The strongest shock of all? For Chelmsford's Maureen Talayco, a human services case manager in Woburn and Winchester, it may have been in trying to get a taxi at New York's Kennedy airport, to make the switch to Laguardia — and the most difficult accent to understand was the Bostonian pilot's, on the shuttle up from New York.

But to return to the beginning. The party of eight adults and 22 teens, members of the "Passport to Spain" program, organized by Andover's Peter Beaven and northern Spain's Juan Oteo, left Boston shortly after April's final snowfall. The Burlington contingent was the largest, with Maria Walton, Spanish teacher in the Burlington school system and 18 Burlington teens eager to practice their Castilian accents on Spanish soil. There were also two students each from Wilmington and Andover.

Some of the group were burdened with baggage that included curling irons and antacid, a spectrum of eyeshadow from aquamarine to peach, a miniature but utterly complete medicine kit, a Spanish verb wheel that was never used, and one pair of fingernail clippers in the lot.

After a comfortable (and quick) six-hour flight from New York, the layover in Madrid included an introduction to rose-colored toilet paper (the consistency of crepe paper), genteel Spanish graffiti, and the two temperatures of hand water

SPANISH OMELETTE IN A SPANISH CAFE: Wilmington's Lorraine Brozyna, left, Beaven of Andover and Chelmsford's Mary Bernard relax over lunch, after a harrowing cliff-edge bus ride to the high mountain village of Mijas, within splendid view of the Mediterranean and Spain's Costa del Sol.

(freezing and glacial) in one of the airport washbasins.

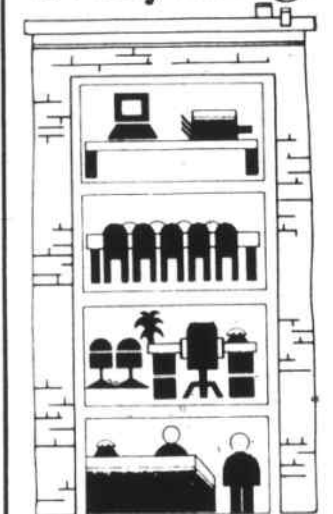

But a country cannot be experienced in an airport — despite our introduction there to beggars and gypsies, plameras (light pastries) and cafe con leche (coffee with hot milk, made by a special process) — which would make a caffeine addict out of the heartiest of health-food fascists.

So it was not until the connecting flight to Malaga that we were finally brought in real touch with Spain, amid the smiling warmth of the Mediterranean sun.

Once there, the minor April Boston snowfall was forgotten, among pineapple-shaped palm

Austin Prep graduates Class of '85

Austin Preparatory School of Reading conferred diplomas on 128 members of the Class of 1985 at ceremonies held on the school's Father Seymour Field on Sunday, June 9. The Graduation Weekend began with a Baccalaureate Mass concelebrated by the school's Augustinian Community. The homilist was the Rev. Joseph F.X. Gillin, O.S.A. Members of the graduating class read the Scripture lessons, psalm, and intercessions. The religious service was followed by a catered dinner for the graduates and their families.

At the Commencement Exercises the Invocation was delivered by the school's chaplain, the Rev. Thomas J. Meehan, O.S.A. The Valedictorian for the Class of 1985 was Daniel Thetchnamurthy Niles of Lynn. Niles is a National Merit Scholarship winner. The Commencement Address was delivered by the Rev. George F. Burnell, O.S.A., who was the first Headmaster of Austin Prep in the 60s.

the Cardinal Medeiros Medal for General Excellence, the Medal for French, and the Medal of Physical Science, to Daniel Niles of Lynn; the Medal of English and the Medal of History to John Martin of Reading; the Medal of Religious Studies to Stephen E. Thompson of Burlington; the Medal for Russian and the Medal for Business Administration to Gerard Collins of Billerica; the Medal for Spanish to Erik G. Riera of Tewksbury. Also, the Medal for Italian to Anthony Vorias of Lynnfield;

ARTHRITIS!

We are seeking patients to participate in one of two studies:

A) A 6-week study to evaluate the safety and efficacy of Ecotrin versus Ibuprofen in the treatment of pain and other symptoms of OSTEOARTHRITIS in patients who are 21-75 years old.

B) A 12-18 month study to evaluate the safety and efficacy of 2 different dosages of Naprosyn in the treatment of RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS. Participants must be 18 years or older having had rheumatoid arthritis for at least 6 months, no longer than 5 years.

During the studies, office visits and laboratory procedures are paid for under grants provided by the pharmaceutical companies. Both studies have been approved by the Food and Drug Administration as well as a local hospital Institutional Review Committee.

Europe from S-9

trees and bright-blooming wildflowers. Some of the party, with a touch of mock malice, pretended to wish harsh weather on New England, as we basked in a land of topaz sun, chalk-white sand and turquoise sea.

Home base on the Costa del Sol was the Hotel Sirocco in Benalmadena, in the province of Malaga. A sirocco is a wind which originates, dry and dusty, in the Sahara Desert, but becomes moist — and presumably pleasant — as it passes over the Mediterranean. The Sirocco was situated not too far from Gibraltar's apes and the jet setters of Marbella, fatuously described in a poorly translated tourist magazine as:

"In short, the place to be at," along with the likes of Joan Collins, Bjorn Borg, Omar Sharif, Christina Onassis and various royals and oil billionaires.

But, billionaires or not, for Americans, the U. S. dollar's strength is mighty in exchange for the Spanish peseta — with the daily fluctuation in value reported to be so serious as to cause occasional bankruptcy among small Spanish businesses.

The dollar is so strong, in fact, that trips to Spain are substantial bargains now. Comfortable hotel accommodations are available for groups at daily rates ranging from $12 per person and up — and it is possible to eat adequately, if not in the grand style, for from $5 to $10 per day. Superb gourmet meals (more on the food later) are available, by the way, for less than $10 per person, with fine regional wine and dessert included.

The weather throughout the stay on the Costa del Sol was balmy and pleasantly hot, with a late sunrise, a very late sunset, and cool and delicious evenings. The coolest, almost chill, evening stole upon a quintet of the adults: Maureen Talayco, Wilmington's Lorraine Brozyna, Mary Bernard of Chelmsford, Andover's Bea Beaven, and this writer, in Mijas, a mountain village which we reached via frantic, madcap, delightful, hair-raising, adrenalin-pumping race by public bus up a tangle of sharp cliff-side curves and hairpin turns, along the edge of sheer drops, with few, seemingly inadequate barriers against a possible sudden, deadly plunge into a deep gorge.

I loved it.

Then, after a sedate, horse-cart tour of Mijas at snail's pace, to calm troubled nerves, and a lunch of Spanish potato omelette, coffee and beer, we spent a late afternoon in the tourist, art and antique shops, and gorging on spectacular views of the mountains around and above, and the Mediterranean coast far below.

For the trip home? We decided to take a taxi, assuring the driver we were in no particular hurry to reach the hotel, and tipped him extra for the gentle, slow ride.

As we entered our hotel to change, a pleasant sirocco blew over us — its origin somewhere in the dark continent to the south — as a promise of the African cuisine to come.

Next: African Curry — The Caves of Nerja — and Granada, where Columbus Made a Suggestion.

NE SINGLES

Singles dance party, for all single men and women, approx. 25-40 years old, to be on June 30 at the Hyatt Regency-Cambridge, from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Hors d'oeuvres, professional disc jockey, cash bar, and hundreds of singles to meet. Donation is at the door $10.00. Casual (but proper) dress is acceptable. For more information call Dave at 899-3900. Sponsored by New England Singles.

ANTIQUE VEHICLE MEET

Take me for a ride in your Tin Lizzie, Victoria, Boneshaker, or Mack to Codman House, Codman Road, Lincoln on Sunday, July 21 for "Motoring Memories: An Antique Vehicle Meet," 12-5 p.m. All antique vehicles (25 years or older) — cars, trucks, motorcycles, bicycles, buses, carriages — are invited to attend. Those arriving in an antique vehicle will be admitted free to the day's activities.

Codman House, an historic house museum, was built c.1735 and is preserved as the family left it, complete with all their possessions. The house will be open for viewing 12-5 p.m. The estate's splendid parklike setting features a formal sunken garden.

All antique vehicles will be on view on the grounds 12-5 p.m. Vehicle owners and passengers, as well as visitors to the meet, are welcome to attend in period costume.

A special feature of the meet will be talks given by two antique vehicle collector/restorers. At 1:00 John W. Lothrop, engineer and restoration expert, will present "Collecting and Restoring," a slide-talk which will give a general overview of cars and the hobby-history, research, and restoration. At 3:00 Bill Guiney, collector and Model T expert, will present "Grandfather's Garage," a talk about Model T's and Model A's highlighting history, construction, and how to buy one.

Old movies featuring antique vehicles will be shown at 2:30 and 4:30. Refreshments will be available.

Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children under 12 and includes all activities. Friends of Codman House and SPNEA members are admitted free.

Codman House is a property of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (SPNEA). In 1985 SPNEA celebrates its 75th anniversary.

For further information, call Codman House, (617) 259-8843.

SUMMER COURSES

IT'S A FACT!

Family physicians—they treat about 85 to 90 percent of all human illnesses. Most treat patients on an ambulatory—in-office—basis to encourage mobility and to help keep costs for the consumer down.
Family physicians have been called the most versatile doctors around because their graduate training includes several broad areas of medicine—pediatrics, obstetrics and gynecology, internal medicine, surgery, psychiatry, neurology and community medicine.

The national organization for family doctors, The American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), representing more than 56,000 family physicians, requires its members to have a minimum of 150 hours of approved continuing education every three years to retain membership. The requirement, unique at the time of origin, has through the years become the standard of the medical profession.

Family physicians who take an examination to become board-certified must be recertified every six years. The American Board of Family Practice, the organization which conducts the certification exam, is one of the only medical specialty boards to require recertification.
